W. A. Woodbridge Loses His Life in Accident While on Pleasure Ride

ONE KILLED, 3 HURT IN AUTO CRASH

By Boston American Staff Photographer.

SCENE OF WRECK AT CLIFTONDALE AND OVERTURNED AUTO.

William Butler Woodbridge, the founder of the Columbian National Insurance Company of this city, was killed instantly and three of his friends were seriously hurt by the overturning of a big automobile in which they were taking a pleasure ride at an early hour to-day.

In the heavy touring machine with Mr. Woodbridge were Samuel H. Wolfe, a wealthy insurance man; A. E. Childs, the president of the Hotel Somerset Company, and W. E. Tengler, an old-time bicyclist. The accident occurred at the corner of Broadway and Felton street, Cliftondale. They had all been at the Country Club enjoying the day and returned to Hotel Somerset for dinner. After that they took a Mr. Appleton, one of their friends, to the South Station to take the train. Then someone proposed a moonlight ride along the North Shore.

WOLFE WORST INJURED.

Wolfe is the worst injured of the three men. It is believed that his skull is fractured. He has not recovered consciousness since the accident. Mr. Childs and Mr. Tengler were brought back to Boston by an automobilist who happened to be passing the scene of the accident.

Mr. Tengler is at his home, No. 32 St. Germain street, weak from loss of blood. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter he said:

"Something broke under the machine. I don't know what it was. We were rounding a curve in the road. The auto turned over on its side.

"We were all thrown out. Mr. Woodbridge was dead when removed.

Tenzler was at the steering wheel, and it is believed that he did not know of the sharp turn that the road took at this point. He failed to turn and the machine went crashing down a gully and then up into a barbed wire fence. The huge car went through this into the rough farm land beyond, where it was overturned.

All of the members of the party were pinned under the car. Tenzler and Childs wore the first to crawl out. They summoned help and raised the machine. Woodbridge was found with Wolfe. The full weight of the machine was resting upon them.

REPUBLICANS THREATENED WITH SPLIT

Reciprocity Wing of the Party Will Demand Place on Ticket, Failing Which They Say Many Will Go to the Democrats—Guild to Be Candidate for Governor.

Lieutenant-Governor Curtis Guild will be the Republican candidate for Governor this Fall, and Eugene N. Foss, representing the reciprocity wing of the party, will be the candidate for second place on the ticket.

H. H. Lavers, one of the managers for Mr. Foss, and who is in a position to know whereof he speaks, assured a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day that Mr. Foss would spend $50,000, if need be, to insure his nomination as Lieutenant-Governor.

The representatives of the Foss element go so far as to declare that if they are not given this consideration on the ticket that many of them will support the Democratic candidate.

These statements were made this afternoon to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN by Mr. Lavers of this city, who is one of the leaders of the reciprocity movement in the State and one of Mr. Foss's closest political friends, so that they may be taken as the utterance of Mr. Foss himself. This is what Mr. Lavers has to say about the situation:

Crane Clears Draper's Path.

"Senator Crane has been in Boston for two days at the Touraine working on ex-Mayor J. M. W. Hall of Cambridge, and the result is that Mr. Hall has agreed to leave the field in the contest for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, to Eben F. Draper of Hopedale. This is not relished by the reciprocity people, and Mr. Foss will not submit to it.

"Mr. Foss is in New York and will not return until Saturday, but you may say that he will not stand for the stand-pat program, but will be a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. As Mr. Foss has said, the reciprocity element of the Republican party intends to have something to say about the ticket as well as about the platform in the next convention.

"It is the influence of Senator Crane that has induced Mr. Hall to withdraw, and the withdrawal, while it surprises us, does not discourage us by any means. It was at Mr. Hall's own request that we put him forward as the reciprocity candidate for the second place on the ticket, and Mr. Foss authorized me to tell Mr. Hall that he would make his first contribution for the advancement of Mr. Hall's candidacy $5,000. That was to pay for the expenses of organizing his forces and distributing literature.

Will Spend $50,000.

"Now that Mr. Hall is out of the way I can say for Mr. Foss that he will be willing to spend twenty-four hours of every day and spend $50,000, if needs be, to make a showing for a reciprocity candidate for Lieutenant-Governor and reciprocity platform.

"Why doesn't he try for the nomination for Governor?" was asked.

"No, he won't do that. While we realize that the reciprocity element is the majority element of the party, we do not think we could defeat Mr. Guild. I will say, however, that if we are not given the consideration we are entitled to we shall vote the Democratic ticket."

BEAT AND ROB SOMERVILLE MAN AND WIFE

John Elder Fatally Hurt in New York and Wife Helps Police Catch Assailants.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 15.—A plucky woman who, with her husband, had been held up, robbed and beaten on the street, spent all of this morning in the company of a detective, running down the highwaymen—members of the notorious "gap" gang.

The attack occurred in Hamilton street. The victims are John Elder, of No. 1138 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, and his wife, who came here yesterday from the late home of the couple in Somerville, Mass.

After seeing the sights in Manhattan, Elder decided not to take the trip back to Brooklyn. With his wife he wandered into Hamilton street and asked a crowd of men if they could direct him to a lodging house. They sent him to No. 18 and demanded twenty-five cents, as they said, for the trouble.

Elder did not respond quickly and one of the men ordered him to throw up his hands. He obeyed and his pockets were robbed of all the money they contained.

Then the ruffians felled him by a blow over the head, using a piece of iron pipe. A punch in the face knocked Mrs. Elder into the street and the crowd ran away.

Elder is in Gouverneur Hospital. His skull is fractured and he may die. Mrs. Elder spent several hours with the police searching the neighborhood of Hamilton street.

Of five men arrested she identified two—William Conroy, alias "Tamo," of No. 234 Hamilton street, and John Foley, alias "The Cobbler," of No. 18 Hamilton street—as among the assailants of herself and husband.

PEACE ENVOYS WILL MEET AT WASHINGTON

ROOSEVELT ANNOUNCES THAT JAPAN AND RUSSIA HAVE REACHED AGREEMENT.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The peace envoys of Japan and Russia are to meet here to consider terms for the close of the Far Eastern conflict.

President Roosevelt issued to-day the following statement, which terminates the controversy over the first preliminary in the negotiations:

"When the two governments (Russia and Japan) were unable to agree on either Chefoo or Paris, the President suggested The Hague, but both governments have now requested that Washington be chosen the place of meeting of the plenipotentiaries, and the President has accordingly formally notified both governments that Washington will be so selected.

Following the making of the above announcement, Secretary to the President Loeb said: "If, after the organization of the plenipotentiaries in Washington, it is found to be too hot here, the meeting can be adjourned to some Summer resort in the north."

Owing to the uncomfortable character of the climate in Washington during the Summer months, this is probably what will be done. The most likely northern resort is Newport, the Summer home of many of the diplomats accredited to this capital. Manchester-by-the-Sea has also been suggested.

URGE SMALL INDEMNITY.

It is now stated that the Continental powers are exerting great pressure on Japan to agree to a moderate indemnity. The argument is advanced that the payment by Russia of any such cash indemnity [illegible] would not only [illegible] harass seriously the St. Petersburg government, but [illegible] would obstruct the finances of the entire Western world. Indeed, it has been suggested that such a payment to all intents and purposes might render Russia a practical bankrupt.

The opinions and views of the United States and other powers on this subject have been permitted to reach the principal advisers of the Japanese Emperor.

Such discussion of the question of cash indemnity as has occurred has been merely suggestive of conditions likely to be encountered by Japan when she shall formulate her peace terms.

During the past ten days President Roosevelt has had conferences with Baron Kaneko, the Japanese financial agent in the United States. Baron Kaneko, who is one of the most eminent of oriental financiers, is competent to speak by authority on all subjects relating to Japan's finances. For this reason he was consulted by the President.

His conference with the President at the White House yesterday, there is reason to believe, concerned the subject of Japan's cash demands upon Russia.

WILL BE REASONABLE.

Opinion in European capitals prevails that peace negotiations will eventually prove successful. This is based primarily on the belief that Japan will meet Russia more than half way, making unexpectedly reasonable demands. Certain intimations have been received that Japan's terms will not include the demolition of Vladivostok fortifications nor the surrender of Sakhalin, and that the indemnity to be demanded will be most reasonable.

JAPANESE MOVE TO ENCIRCLE CZAR'S ARMY IN MANCHURIA

LONDON, June 15.—Dispatches from the Far East indicate that the Mikado's military commanders are rapidly pushing their arrangements to surround and capture, if possible, the army of General Linevitch.

The Japanese are advancing in a vast semi-circle with the intention of enveloping the Russians.

St. Petersburg reports severe fighting on the Russian left, which has been compelled to give way before the Japanese advance.

The news has caused profound misgivings in the Russian capital, and orders have been telegraphed to accelerate the mobilization of two army corps and six field batteries.

Count Okuma, former Minister of Finance of Japan, is quoted in Tokio as saying:

"Prospects of peace are pleasant; yet there is another side to the situation. The military point of view has to be considered. The Russian army has lost its fighting power; its navy is annihilated, and Japan for the first time is in a position to invade Russian territory and to attack Sakhalin, Kamtschatka and Vladivostok."

The Russian war office has invited proposals from German ammunition works this week for 200,000 cartridges of all kinds, costing between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, and also for considerable quantities of regulation infantry rifle-

A victory for the Champs to-day will boost them a point higher in the pennant race, making a tie for fourth place, as there is only a game between Boston and Detroit. There is a suspicion that the Tigers are playing a little beyond their proper gait, and that they will soon be slowly floating to the rear. This is a fine time to give them a backward shove. PEASANT RIOT, 3 DEAD, 58 HURT

VIENNA, June 15.—Three persons were killed, eighteen seriously injured and forty others were bruised and badly shaken up in a free fight which occurred at a performance of a traveling show at Dyreksgaz, Hungary.

A peasant boy who volunteered in a "cannibal act" was badly bitten by the "cannibal."

This brought on the melee in which the casualties occurred. During the excitement the eccentric cannibal escaped and the police are now searching for him.

AMERICAN GIVES KING EDWARD A HINT

LONDON, June 15.—Wilson Marshall of the New York Yacht Club, owner of the yacht Atlantic, which won the transatlantic race for the cup presented by Emperor William, was presented by Sir Thomas Lipton to King Edward at Windsor Castle.

Mr. Marshall remarked how much himself and other American yacht owners would like to compete for a king's cup in English waters. The king said it always gave him the greatest pleasure to do anything for the encouragement of yachting.

GLOUCESTER, June 15.—Congressman Gardner, William H. Jordan, Collector of Ports, and Benjamin A. Smith will leave Gloucester next Monday for Washington, where they will visit the President and the State Department officials in regard to the Hay-Bond treaty between the United States and Canada.

The three delegates represent the Gloucester fishermen, who are in search of the correct interpretation of the Hay treaty. The report that the President would be asked to close Newfoundland and Canadian waters to protect the interests of the Gloucester fishermen is groundless. There has been so much controversy regarding the treaty that the delegates will go there just what the views of the President and the State Department are.

BEATEN UNCONSCIOUS AND ROBBED IN LYNN

LYNN, June 15.—Isaac Caplin, a peddler, was attacked by two highwaymen on the turnpike over the Lynn marshes, robbed of his horse and wagon, every cent he had, and beaten unconscious. When he recovered he walked two miles to the Lynn police station and told of the robbery.

GOV. BELL ASKS FOR TICKET TO SEE HANGING OF MRS. ROGERS

TWO PASSES TO EXECUTION ARE SENT HIM

Fact That They Are Not Transferable Indicates That He Intends to Be Present.

MINISTER GOES WITH HIM

Special to the Boston American.

WINDSOR, Vt., June 15.—Not only does Governor Charles James Bell of Vermont intend that Mary Mabel Rogers shall be hanged a week from to-morrow, but it is his intention personally to be present at the hanging. He will be accompanied by no less an official than Attorney-General Clarke C. Fitts, to whose strenuous efforts in behalf of the State is largely due the refusal of a new trial for Mrs. Rogers.

Sheriff Peck, who is now lasting tickets for the execution, has sent two tickets to Governor Bell at his request, one was for the Governor himself, the other for a clergyman whom the Governor desired to have attend the hanging.

NO FURTHER DELAY.

At the suggestion of the Governor, it has already been decided that tickets shall not under any circumstances be transferable, and that Sheriff Peck himself shall see to it that those who attend the hanging are the ones whose names appear upon the cards they present. In asking so, the request of the Governor that a ticket be issued to him indicates his determination to be present at Mrs. Rogers's death.

It indicates more than that. It demonstrates, beyond a doubt, that the Governor has finally determined to remain unmoved by the call for a further reprieve. If he had the slightest intention of further delaying the execution, he would not to-day be requesting tickets for it.

The Governor is very desirous that the number attending the execution shall be very limited, in which opinion the Attorney-General shares. As a result of this, strong pressure has been brought to bear upon Sheriff Peck to exclude all newspaper representatives from the hanging, or at least to allow only those who represent the small Vermont papers to be present.

Tickets have been sent the sheriffs of the various counties in the State save New Hampshire, and a few other officials, each bearing this inscription, "If you are unable to come, kindly regard this ticket as non-transferable." Which is a polite hint that if presented by any other than the person whose name it bears it will be refused at the entrance to the prison.

MY DUTY TO SEE LAWS EXECUTED, SAYS GOV. BELL

By Eleanor Ames.

Special to the Boston American.

HARDWICK, Vt., June 14.—"A just man, but set in his ways," is how the neighbors and lifelong friends and acquaintances of Governor Bell describe him.

"Bell do just what he thinks he ought to do in regard to the hanging of Mary Rogers," declared a man who has known him all his life. "If he thinks the law ought to be carried out and the law says hang, Mary Rogers will hang. When the Governor has made up his mind to what he believes is his duty, all creation can't turn Bell."

And I believe that is true.

After having seen Governor Bell day after day, at his home, in the market place, when resting, when absorbed in business, I am convinced that he is determined to let the law, which demands the life of Mary Rogers take its course.

So I do not see how anything short of a miracle can save the life of that wretched woman, waiting to-day in the shadow of the gallows for her last hour.

Governor Bell is a typical representative of the New Englander.

He is not emotional, nor impulsive, nor sentimental.

He is with deliberation.

He takes life seriously.

He is literal in his views and interpretations.

He is what might be termed a "thoroughly good man."

He believes in doing his duty, no matter how unpleasant.

He values justice with a high rating.

"Both extenuating facts have been entered," he said, "until the laws of Vermont have become a framework, but the law is made to be obeyed, not to be evaded.

Bell Knows Them All.

This country is the Governor's home territory. He knows every man, woman and child within a radius of twenty miles. He was born and raised in the little town of Walden. The fertile acres of undulating meadows, the woods stretching back over the mountain and growing black against the sky, the small streams and his boyhood home were all his future knew or they were to know.

It was in the nearby town of Cabot that he wooed and won his wife. To his present home that he brought his bride. Three his two daughters were born, there they have grown to womanhood.

In this roomy, comfortable, but unpretentious home, with its broad piazza, Governor Bell has received many of the highest honors in the power of his political career was reached and he became Governor.

"Did you ever visit Mary Rogers's home at Hyde Park?" I asked suddenly.

"No," said the Governor. "I believe I never saw any of the family but Mrs. Rogers."

"It's awful in its poverty and desolation," I shuddered. "When I visited it, last Winter, I thought it the dreariest and most hopeless place I had ever seen."

"I don't imagine she had many pleasant lots," he said.

"I suppose it seems very pleasant to her now, when she knows that it is about to end," I volunteered.

Then his grave eyes were serious.

"This is not a personal matter," he said. "I am the Governor of a State where laws are for capital offenses. It is my duty to see that the laws are executed. It is not a pleasant duty, but it must be."

A prominent official of the State, one of the members of the investigating committee to look into the Rogers's case, this person, told me that he believed if a poll should be taken of the legislature the vast majority would favor commuting Mrs. Rogers's sentence to life imprisonment.

Worse as Time Draws Near.

"It seems worse to hang a woman when the date draws near," he said, "than when it is in the future some distance. On both sides, I don't know that feeling against Mrs. Rogers is so intense as it was.

On that last point I am not so sure. It is difficult to find a man who has a feeling of sympathy around here for her.

There is a few who do not believe in the death penalty at all, but even to-day believe that if the law exists it should be carried out. Others are utterly indifferent. Many do not even know the date of the execution.

Few, men or women, have any sympathy for Mrs. Rogers because she is a woman. They take the stand that "Here was a fiendish crime." But the majority of Vermonters whom I have met, simply don't seem to care whether she hangs or not.

And one man expressed it: "We've all got all the troubles of our own that we can tend to. I guess the Governor knows his business and will do 'bout what's right."

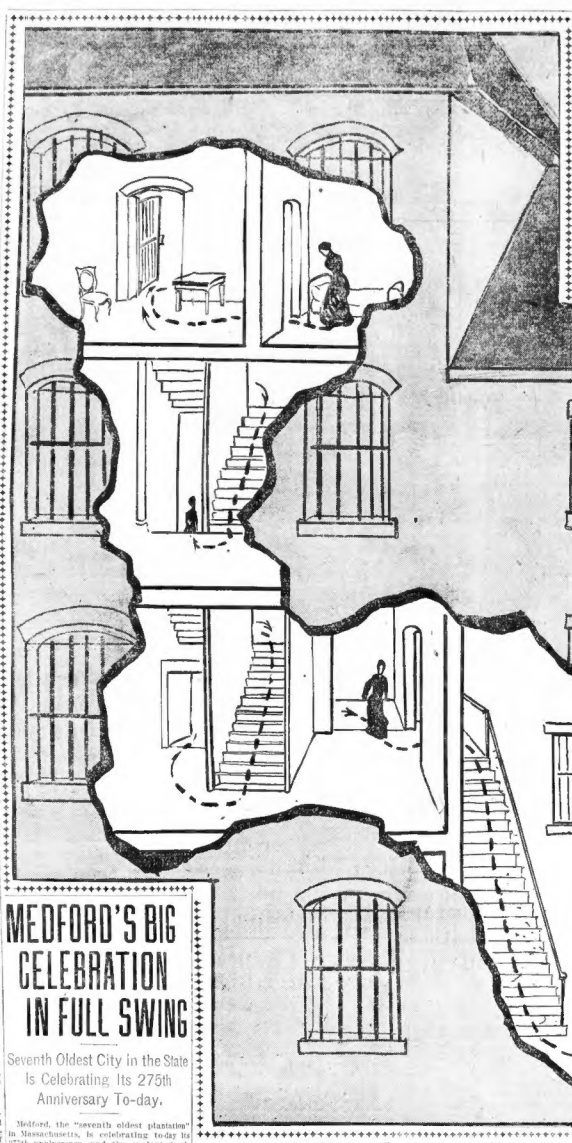

DIAGRAM OF DEATH JOURNEY MRS. ROGERS MUST TAKE TO SCAFFOLD.

OBEY CHRIST'S BIDDING, SAVE MRS. ROGERS!

For God's mercy to guilty sinners whom Christ came to save, bidding us, His servants, do likewise, I beg you to forbid the hanging of Mary Rogers.—From Mrs. Florence Spooner's letter to Governor Bell.

A Plea for Mrs. Rogers

Ye men who hold a people's laws,
Why stand ye idly by,
And have the hangman do his work,
And let the woman die?

What right have ye to face your God,
His mercy to expect,
If on a fellow creature's head
Vengeance ye have wrecked?

"Ah! but," ye say, "Man's blood she spilled,
And man her blood must spill;
The hangman's noose its work must do,
A felon's grave to fill."

Were she your daughter, sister, wife,
What then would be your way,
To let the State destroy her life,
Or bid its hand to stay?

And do ye think that on the earth
There lives a man so pure,
That he can look within himself,
And feel himself secure?

And know he has the power and right
To judge another's soul,
And send it on its longing flight,
Where seons roll and roll?

Do ye not know that he such act
The soul ye cannot kill;
And that in ages yet unborn
It will be living still?

It seems indeed an awful thing
That from the gallows tree
A human soul its flight should wing
Into eternity.

Can we not trust the hand that gave
To take the life away?
Or do ye think that God's own work
Is better done this way?

And ye who gaze upon the scene,
What sort of men are ye,
That ye can look on fling so mean
As death upon the tree?

Go read the story of the Past,
And tell it if ye can,
That swinging axe and falling drop
Have benefited Man.

Ah, no! the block and gallows tree,
With all their victims slain,
Have never made the world refine free,
But made it moan with pain.

And what hath knowledge done for Man,
If he stand idly by?
The savage, too, could do the same,
And let the woman die.

Then stay the law, ye men who can,
Before its course be run;
And hear the echoes sounding far,
"Well done! Well done! Well done!"

BEGS GOVERNOR TO SAVE STATE FROM DISGRACE

Mrs. Florence Spooner Makes Appeal for Commutation for Mrs. Rogers.

SHE QUOTES NOTED MEN

Mrs. Florence Spooner, head of the Prison Reform and Anti-Death Penalty Leagues of Massachusetts, has made another strong appeal to Governor Bell to commute the death sentence of Mary Rogers to imprisonment for life.

In stirring, heart-reaching words Mrs. Spooner calls upon the Governor to revoke the right of morality over the stern law, and to use his strength in preventing everlasting disgrace from falling upon the State of Vermont.

She sends the Governor a pamphlet containing extracts from speeches of famous Massachusetts men who have strongly opposed the death penalty. Her letter is:

Letter to Governor.

His Excellency, Governor Bell,
Dear Sir—

"A year or two past I sent you a pamphlet such as the one now enclosed, believing even under strains of your many duties you will read its contents. Mercy is only promised to those who show mercy, and we all desire this pearl of great price. I am giving my time, my strength, not to put to scandal, but aid, the Lord's Prayer, by becoming one of the advocates of forgiving trespasses.

"Dear Governor, this letter goes with my soul and spirit bowed before you to ask you to grant a favor to God, and also, to the Prison Reform and Anti-Death Penalty Leagues of Massachusetts, to commute the sentence of Mrs. Rogers to imprisonment. These leagues are composed of and indorsed by leading educators of ecclesiastical and civil governments.

"For God's mercy to guilty sinners whom Christ came to save, bidding us, His servants do likewise, I beg you to forbid the hanging of Mary Rogers. Very truly yours,

"MRS. FLORENCE SPOONER."

Mrs. Spooner quotes from the words of famous men in support of her argument that modern sentiment, moral and religious, is utterly opposed to the taking of one human life for another. One of those quoted is Very Rev. William Byrne, vicar-general of the archdiocese of Boston, who said before the joint judiciary committee of the Massachusetts Legislature on February 28, 1900:

Officials Shed Blood.

"We are living under the Christian dispensation of grace and mercy and not under the Mosaic penal code. The Catholic church sets an example of Christian charity by forbidding her ministers to shed human blood, inflict the death penalty or even sit as judges in capital cases."

MEDFORD'S BIG CELEBRATION IN FULL SWING

Seventh Oldest City in the State Is Celebrating Its 275th Anniversary To-day.

Medford, the "seventh oldest plantation" in Massachusetts, is celebrating to-day its 275th anniversary, and the ancient city is decked in the glorious coloring of flags and bunting. The dark green foliage makes the foreground of streamers and patriotic decorations, which almost hide the town. There is a great crowd in the streets and everybody is congratulating everybody else because the fete is complimented by such a beautiful June day.

The anniversary exercises formally opened this afternoon in the Medford opera house, when Chairman David H. Bowe of the executive committee introduced Mayor Michael F. Dwyer as president of the day. The services include addresses by the Mayor, Judge William Cushing Bolte, Rev. Sebastian Bowden of Brooklyn, N. Y., a poem by Dr. William Everett of Quincy, music by the Tufts College choir and the singing of the ode written by Jacob Hall Gleason of Medford.

This evening the banquet will be held in the Lawrence Armory on High street, Friday will be school day, when appropriate exercises will be held in various parts of the city. Saturday will be a holiday, preceded by a Governor Brooks and placed on the flank building, is to be unveiled.

Saturday Is Gala Day.

Saturday, June 17, will be gala day. From the salute of the 38th gun at sunrise until the last rocket is fired at night there will be a perpetual round of excitement. At nine o'clock Medford and Arlington High Schools cross bats on the baseball diamond. At 10:30 o'clock the parade forms and marches through the principal streets of the city. At two o'clock athletic sports at the Playsted will be the center of attraction, and six hours later there will be the band concert and fireworks on the common, while a water carnival on the Mystic Lakes will occur in West Medford.

Throughout the celebration the various societies of the city will keep open house, and places of historic interest will be open to the public. An historic exhibit at the Public Library, High School and Armory will also be open to the public.

Among the places of general interest historically is the old Governor Cradock house on Riverside avenue, built in 1680, which was the first brick house built in America, the bricks being brought from England and the house erected by slaves.

The Royall House on Main street, built prior to 1690, with the old slave quarters still standing in the rear; the Jonathan Watson House on High st., built in 1738; the Jonathan Wade House in Brooks Lane, built in 1685 and the second brick house in America; the Middlesex Canal bridge on the Brooks estate, under which canal boats plied between Boston and Lowell in 1804, the first steam railroad; the Old Cradock bridge, which replaces the first drawbridge ever built in America; the monument to Sagamore John on the Brooks estate, one of the most notable and historic monuments in existence, and a hundred other historic spots are to be pointed out to the visitors by various historical societies of the city.

On Sunday a mass meeting in the Opera House will bring the exercises to a close.

COMMEMORATIVE ODE.

By Annie Hall Gleason.

LURED by Mystic's gleaming waters,
Came our sires, in days long gone—
In their hale zeal, undaunted,
Gazing forth to freedom's dawn—
Here their standard proudly rearing
On these heights, that hallowed morn.

Steadfast, in the consecration
Of their lives to this new shore,
Battling with the crafts foemen,
Or in sacred ranks of war,
Liberty or Death: their watchward,
Liberty, forevermore.

Deathless on Fame's storied pages
Are their deeds of valor culled.
Down the arcades of the ages
Still resounds their anthems bold—
God and Freedom! Home and Country!
One great Shepherd, and one fold.

Thou, whose mercy still has kept us
In the paths our fathers trod,
Let thy mighty arm defend us,
Leading on, Almighty God!
Then victorious we will praise thee,
Every voice in glad accord.

SWIFT WINS BY COURT DECISION

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in an opinion handed down to-day, decides that Henry W. Swift, former United States Marshal for this district, is entitled to recover $1,225.59 from the government, expended by him as marshal and disallowed by the comptroller of the currency in Washington.

The items which were disallowed are for the recompense of bailiffs in opening and closing the District and Circuit Courts, and date back to 1895. One of the items disallowed included the care of the jury over two Sundays in the Bram murder trial.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Joseph Towle, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of his friend, William Huse, by a blow during an altercation last Sunday, was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury in the Lynn Police Court to-day.

WOMAN BURNED SERIOUSLY

Mrs. Dora Freedman, twenty seven years old, of No. 122 Furnace street, Chelsea, was terribly burned to-day, when her clothing caught fire from a lighted candle, which she was carrying in her home. She is in the Lynn Hospital.

MAN MAY DIE OF RUNAWAY HURT

DEDHAM, June 15.—Henry F. Beal, a well-known business man of this place, was seriously injured in a runaway smash up on Court street to-day. Mr. Beal was driving along Court street in his light carriage when a heavily laden lumber team crashed into his carriage, which was overturned. Mr. Beal was pinned beneath it. It was at first thought he was dead, but Drs. Worthington and Pratt, who were nearby and who attended him, have decided that he has a slight chance for recovery.

ARBITRATION ENDS STRIKE.

EAST BROOKFIELD, June 15.—The strike at the Massicld Woolen Mill has been settled through conferences between Bernard F. Supple of the State Board of Arbitration and representatives of the operatives and employers.

WILLIAM B. WOODBRIDGE KILLED, THREE OTHERS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

BIG INSURANCE MEN VICTIMS IN BAD ACCIDENT

S. H. Wolfe of New York and A. E. Childs of Boston Two of the Injured.

WERE ON A PLEASURE RIDE

His body was taken to Bisbee's undertaking rooms in Cliftondale by the Saugus police, whose ambulance has been summoned. Childs and Tegler were brought back to Boston. Mr. Childs is badly hurt. The machine is a complete wreck.

Mr. Woodbridge was born in Chicago thirty-three years ago. He entered Princeton College, graduating in the class of 1893. Woodbridge was one of the leading athletes of his day and was the intercollegiate track champion during his college term. He was also prominent in society circles at Nassau and New York.

Four years ago he founded the Columbian National Life Insurance Company of this city, with offices at No. 180 Federal street. He was aided in establishing the company by the late Attorney-General Hosea M. Knowlton. Mr. Woodbridge was one of the vice-presidents of the company.

PROMINENT CLUB MAN.

Mr. Woodbridge was prominent in club circles in this city and Brookline, where he resided. He was especially devoted to sports of all kinds, and was a member of the Boston Athletic Association, the Country Club, the Boston Press Club, Boston Club and Exchange Club.

A widow and two children have been thrown into sudden grief at their home, No. 190 Hyslop road, by the accident. Mrs. Woodbridge was prostrated over the death of her husband and is under the care of a physician.

The officials of the Columbian Life Insurance Company, on Federal street, were shocked to learn of the sudden death of the founder of the company, who was a favorite with all with whom he came in contact.

Mr. Woodbridge had invited Mr. Wolfe from New York to attend the races at the Country Club as his guest. Mr. Wolfe is one of the prominent actuaries in New York life insurance circles and a personal friend of Woodbridge. Mr. Childs, who is a director in the company in this city, went along, and after having supper Mr. Woodbridge suggested that the party go by a moonlight ride about the country.

It was a novelty for Mr. Wolfe and he readily accepted the invitation.

Scores of telegrams inquiring for information were received by the insurance officials regarding the details of the accident.

SLOCUM HORROR YEAR AGO TO-DAY

NEW YORK, June 15.—One year ago to-day 1,031 persons lost their lives in the burning and sinking of the excursion steamer General Slocum in the East River. Two hundred and sixty-six other persons were injured in the worst marine disaster that has ever occurred in New York waters. No one has been punished for the criminal negligence which made the disaster possible.

A granite monument will be unveiled this afternoon at Middle Village, L. I., in the unidentified dead, and to-night a memorial service will be held at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, from which the party of 1,400 excursionists set out a year ago to enjoy a day on the Sound.

CIGARETTE CLUBS FORMED

INDIANAPOLIS, June 15.—Cigarette clubs, the object of which is to provide their members with cigarettes by buying them in bulk outside of the State, have been formed here and in other cities of the State, and thousands of packages are now coming into Indiana through the mails and by express.

In spite of all the counties the decision by Judge Leathers, holding that cigarettes so bought may be smoked legally, has been generally accepted. Local dealers who refuse to handle cigarettes are taking the orders for the clubs.

SAMPSON CREW GO ON STRIKE

When the United Fruit Company's big steamer Admiral Sampson arrived at her berth at Long Wharf to-day the entire engine room crew, consisting of six oilers, eight firemen and four coal passers, went on strike. Only a short time ago the fire room crews of the Admiral Schley and Admiral Dewey went on strike.

The men refuse to work because of the policy adopted by Superintending Engineer Barnes, who refused to allow the agent of the Atlantic Coast Marine Firemen's Union, James Mahoney, to witness the signatures of the men when signing articles for another trip. In all there are now fifty-four members of the union on strike.

CONTRACTOR HURT BY 50-FOOT FALL

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 15.—Thomas Lavallee of Syracuse, N. Y., one of the contractors on the new naval prison being built at the navy yard, was on a staging 50 feet above the superintending some work when he stepped on a loose plank and fell to the ground a distance of between forty and fifty feet. He sustained injuries about the head, left leg and right arm, besides a bad ankle joint and his body badly bruised. Internal injuries are feared. He is at the Cottage Hospital in this city.

PLUMBING INSPECTORS.

A. L. Mosely of Waltham was elected president of the Massachusetts Association of Plumbing Inspectors at the annual convention of the association in Worcester. T. M. Wilson of Boston was elected a vice-president, and W. A. Wheaton of Boston and P. Connolly of Watertown were appointed to the legislative committee.

SERGT. GORDON DENIES THERE'S 'MAN HIGHER UP'

Interesting Developments Are Expected, However, at Cambridge Hearing.

POLITICAL FIGHT IS WARM

Although Police Sergeant Herbert Gordon of Cambridge declares that there is no man "higher up" in the political fight that has resulted in the arrest of nine prominent business men of that city on grave charges, Mayor Daly will give a hearing to-night on the charges preferred against the erstwhile officer who has collected the evidence upon which the indictments were procured.

In the affidavit which was presented to the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday night by Alderman Maurice M. Lynch, John Lavin swore that he was assured by Sergeant Gordon that there was a man "higher up" who was pressing the charges against the Cambridge Democrats. Lavin says that his testimony before the Grand Jury was all a lie, but that his affidavit to the solemn truth. He declares that Sergeant Gordon made him give the testimony he did.

Gordon Denies Statement.

Sergeant Gordon denies that there is any man "higher up."

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day Sergeant Gordon said:

"It is not true that I told John Lavin that we would receive money for testifying before the grand jury.

"I did not tell him that there was money coming from a man higher up.

"It is not true that I have put in my time after hours discussing these proceedings with Assessor Gaffney.

"All these facts will come out to-night at the hearing in City Hall before Mayor Daly, I suppose. Until then I shall not have another word to say."

Mayor Prefers Charges.

Mayor Daly notified Alderman Lynch that he had preferred charges against the sergeant of which he sent the aldermen the following copy:

Office of the Mayor,
Cambridge, Mass.

The following charges are hereby instituted against Sergeant Herbert Gordon on account of a resolution which was introduced in the Board of Aldermen on Tuesday, June 13, 1905, by Alderman Maurice M. Lynch, and passed by said board at said meeting:

Charge—That said Gordon was guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Specifications:

First—That in the year 1904 he was awarded by the city and received a continuance of pay for fifty-two days to which he was not entitled, as the injuries for which said pay was awarded were not received in the exercise of his duty.

Second—That he procured witnesses to give false evidence against James A. Montgomery at the June sitting, 1905, of the grand jury in Middlesex County.

By AUGUSTINE J. DALY, Mayor.

Big Crowd Expected.

Mayor Daly doesn't know who the man "higher up" is. District Attorney Sanderson says he doesn't. Chief of Police Pullen will not talk.

It is expected that there will be a big gathering at City Hall to-night. While the charges are simply to be heard by Mayor Daly, it is said there has been no announcement made that it would be a public hearing, he has called for witnesses, and it is understood that there will be several present.

Sergeant Gordon will be represented and will fight the charges to the end, so his friends say.

"To ascertain, if possible, who is "the man higher up," BOSTON AMERICAN reporters interviewed these members of the Cambridge City Government:

Alderman J. Edward Barry, Democrat—I think silence is golden for me just now.

Alderman Manuel Andrews, Democrat—I do not care to have anything to say just at present.

Alderman Francis J. Fahey—The disclosures at the city government meeting Tuesday night were certainly very startling, and I should say that the sooner an investigation was started the better.

"Looks Like Rascality."

Alderman Edward B. James, Democrat—If all was correctly reported it seems to me that there is rascality going on. If the officer secured money from the city under false pretenses it should be returned and the offender punished.

Alderman M. H. Flynn, Democrat—Affidavits are considered good evidence in the absence of anything to the contrary. I would like to see this matter thoroughly investigated.

Alderman J. T. Hart, Democrat—It seems to me that the charge of subornation of perjury against the officer should be left entirely to the court for investigation.

Alderman John Allen, Non-partisan—If Sergeant Gordon took money wrongfully he should be made to return it and should be punished.

Councilman George A. Giles, Non-Partisan—I do not know anything about the matter.

Councilman Charles J. Williams, Democrat—I do not care to go into the merits of the question now.

Councilman Joseph A. Williams, Democrat—I have no opinions one way or another.

Councilman William H. Hogan, Democrat—I have nothing to say now.

Councilman James F. Black, Democrat—I will not give any opinions now.

Councilman Thomas F. O'Neil, Democrat—As to the arrests of the Democrats for alleged registry frauds, I have no knowledge. It is before the court and can be settled there.

Councilman George Stevens, Non-Partisan—I hope if guilty the officers will be punished. As to Gordon, I think he tried to do his duty.

Councilman John B. Smithies, Non-Partisan—I think the matter will work itself out in a little time and right will be uppermost.

Councilman Russell Crane, Non-Partisan—If there has been illegality it will certainly be ferreted out.

Councilman E. E. Thayer, Non-Partisan—I think the disclosures at the meeting Tuesday night was merely an attempt to discredit Sergeant Gordon in his prosecution of the false registration cases.

Councilman James Crowley, Democrat, and one of the men arrested—The less said now the better. I am a defendant, and as yet I have failed to find out what case I am connected with. I do not even know the name of the man whose registration got me into trouble.

Councilman Julius Meyers, Non-Partisan—The matter has not come before the Council, and I have not looked into it far enough to talk.

CANADA RIFLES TO VISIT BOSTON

Arrangements for a visit to Boston of the Forty-third Regiment, the Duke of Cornwall's Own Rifles, of Ottawa, Canada, are being made to-day. It is planned to have the regiment, which is the most famous in Canada, to come to Boston on August 4 and remain till August 6. The Prince of Wales is the honorary colonel of the regiment.

Lieutenant Colonel S. Maynard Rogers, with three of his lieutenants, Messrs. A. L. Ogilvie, W. H. Fraser and John A. McLaren of the Forty-third Regiment, are at the Touraine arranging for the regiment's coming.

Invitations to the regiment have been extended by several British organizations.

AUTOMOBILE IN FATAL CRASH; THE MAN KILLED AND 2 OF THE INJURED

WEATHER MAN SINGS OF HEAT

Admits Under Pressure That To-day Will Be "Some Hot," But Refuses Details.

"Sure it's going to be hot, but just how hot to-day I don't know," said the Weather Man at his office on the roof of the post office building. "But nobody else knows how hot it's going to be, so I am safe. My prediction in a case of weather like we are handling out to-day goes something like this: 'And for Weather Map begin to sing in the key of G major.

"'Fair tonight and to-morrow, so I say.' 'Tis the same old story in the same old way.

"And when we're in doubt as to the wind we just light and variables the prediction we find.

"'Now you see,' continued the Weather Man, 'if we call that Form 08, it doesn't commit us one way or another. It tells the perspiring public that it may not rain, and that a light wind will blow, now from the South, now from the West, and maybe from the North.

"Then the public, which pays our office rent and for our weather making machines, wants to know how hot it is going to be. The public is hard to satisfy. So then we get busy and declare:

"Humidity's 67, and that's pretty bad, but we got a palmleaf—then you'll be glad.

"I know that the verse is productive of hot weather language, but I've only started singing my predictions lately.

"So you see, boy, that's the way it stands," the Weather Man concluded. "I don't know officially where the temperature is going to locate to-day, but I've got a little inside information I'll give you to show that I am your friend. The tip is this:

"It's going to be some hot.

"The temperature was 66 at 5 o'clock, rose to 72 at 8, fell to 71 at 9, and to 70 at 10. Yesterday the mercury climbed to 85, making it the hottest day this season.

TALKS OF DEATH, HE DROPS DEAD

MIDDLEBORO, June 15.—James Frank White, aged forty-six, hanged himself to-day with a rope, while sitting in a chair, in a pine grove not over 100 yards from the rear of his house.

Rev. W. Clarkson Ryder, aged about forty-five, of the Independent Congregational church at Rock, was, this morning about 7 o'clock, taking care of the horse and of the details of the funeral to C. M. Atwood, when the strain of the excitement proved too much for him and he dropped dead.

GOV. BELL MADE PRESIDENT

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., June 15.—Governor Charles J. Bell of Walden was elected president of the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society at its annual meeting here in connection with the Congregational State convention.

PARENTS OF 11 CHILDREN PART

PITTSFIELD, June 15.—After living together twenty-five years and bringing up eleven children, Mrs. Catherine Allen of North Adams, sixty years old, has been granted separate support from her husband, with $400 in cash and income of $25 per month. For years Mrs. Allen ran a farm near the east portal of Hoosac Tunnel.

U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA Recommends Pe-ru-na For Stomach Trouble and Dyspepsia

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina, two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

Dyspepsia Is Nothing More Nor Less Than Catarrh of the Stomach.

Dyspepsia Remedies Are Useless, Remove the Cause—This Is the Only Rational Means of Cure.

Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh—Whether of the Stomach or Any Other Organ. Therefore Pe-ru-na Cures Dyspepsia.

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia.

To undertake to treat dyspepsia by the various patent nostrums is only to temporize without any permanent results.

In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated.

To eradicate the catarrh, a catarrh remedy must be used.

Manifestly, a local catarrh remedy cannot be used in such cases.

Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available.

Peruna exactly meets the indications.

Do Not Delay.

If you suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, and have tried ordinary remedies without relief, it is safe to assume that your case is one of catarrh of the stomach.

Do not neglect this condition. Delays are dangerous.

A bottle of Peruna taken now will save you much needless suffering and expense.

Suffered Three Years.

Milburn Kenworthy, 600 Broad street, Newark, N. J., Secy Retail Clerks' Union, writes: "I have been troubled with catarrh of the head and stomach for about three years. I decided to try Peruna. In three weeks I was much better. In seven weeks more I was well. I am very much pleased with Peruna."

SUICIDE IS A DEFAULTER FOR $12,000

Providence Man, Short in His Accounts, Ends His Life by Drowning.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 15.—It has developed that Irving H. Potter, who committed suicide by throwing himself from a rowboat into the Pawtuxet River, last Friday night, was a defaulter.

He was head bookkeeper for Oliver Johnson and Company, manufacturers of painters and gilders' supplies, and the firm has made a public statement to the effect that Potter's shortage was for a considerable sum and his peculations extended over a period of several years. They assert that Potter was confronted with proofs of his stealings last Friday noon, confessed that he had defaulted, and left the office. The earlier rumor put the defalcation at $5,000, but it is now unofficially placed at $12,000.

Potter's body was recovered yesterday. The only cause that can be assigned for the defalcation is extravagance in his home.

LEG BROKEN BY THUGS.

Richard E. Therrie of No. 14 Woodbine street, Somerville, had his right leg broken in a struggle with thugs who held him up and attempted to rob him on Howard street. The men did not secure Therrie's money.

COMSTOCK GETS HIS STOCK BACK

Colonel Henry W. Comstock declared to-day that the $120,000 securities, which he alleges were stolen from him Sunday night while he was asleep in his stateroom on the Fall River steamer Puritan, have been returned to his representative in New York.

The aged Westerner is prostrated in his room at the United States Hotel. A physician in attendance has ordered that he shall not be disturbed. Through his secretary, Frank Bowman, Colonel Comstock sent out the following statement to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I cannot now make public the numbers of the certificates of stock which were stolen, but may do so later when I receive them. They are now in the hands of my representative in New York, to whom they were returned upon payment of $1,000. So far as I am concerned, the incident is now closed."

SOCIETY OUT FOR RACES AT COUNTRY CLUB

Mrs. "Jack" Gardner Conspicuous Among the Notables Present.

FINE PROGRAMME TO-DAY

To-day's Races at the Country Club

First Race—For pole ponies, three-eighths of a mile, six entries, gentlemen riders.

Second Race—Hack race, one mile, seven entries.

Third Race — Welterweights, one mile, purse $500, six entries.

Fourth Race—Three-year-olds, welterweights, three-quarters of a mile, purse $500, eight entries.

Fifth Race—The St. Botolph handicap, steeplechase, purse $1,500, about two and one-half miles, seven entries.

Sixth Race—The Myopia steeplechase, purse $1,000, about two and one-half miles, ten entries.

"This is one the prettiest pictures of fair country, good horses and handsome women that a man could wish to see."

Standing on the steps of the racetrack grand stand at the Country Club, in Brookline, on the opening afternoon of the club's twenty-fourth annual race meet, one could say that to himself with satisfaction.

And the chugging of a gleaming automobile rolling across the newly parking space would remind him—"Don't forget the automobile. It isn't so artistic, but it's mighty handy, makes good sport and is too numerous to be ignored."

It seems as though the broad expanse of the Country Clubs grounds never showed to better advantage.

The weather was just a "beetle" hot. But the sky was blue, with soft white clouds. The close-clipped turf of the parking space was vivid green. The brown ribbon of track wound its oval course in pleasant contrast. The gently rolling hills of the outer grounds, with their groups and patches of foliage, made perfect background.

Gay Colors of the Crowd.

And all around on the grand stand, in the immediate foreground of the parking space and on the clubhouse lawn in the middle distance showed the gay colors of the crowd.

Someone said there were three thousand people there. Possibly. They were typically well-dressed. The women all looked young.

"Every well-to-do woman looks ten years younger nowadays than she is," some one pleasant observer has said. "It isn't clothes, yet it is clothes."

So there you are. Anyhow, they were fair to see, these gay parties of smartly frocked girls and women.

The men ran from kaleidoscoped lobs to oldsters. The most interesting thing about the elderly men was the way they hustled around the course to follow the steeplechase races.

These dignified men of affairs would glue their eyes to their field glasses and watch the chasers get away. They would swing their glasses over toward the log-jumped jump. Then every blessed one would scurry around the corner of the grand stand and out onto the turf in the rear to cut off the chasers at the log.

Taking the Water Jump.

Down the lobees jolted to the water jump.

Up, up and over go the horses. "A-ah, a-a-h!" from the crowd, then scamper back to the grand stand to catch the finish. It was as interesting to watch the crowd as anything else.

All this time the occupants of the parking space were standing up on their autos or their trups and coaches, following the chasing through their glasses. From the more exclusive precinct of the clubhouse lawn and veranda dowagers and guests watched the course likewise.

From parking space, coach, house, stirring sights at the water jump. Then a warm gazing out to Cycle Park if only to see the way the four chasers took the jump in the first place. Then the "Duke's" steeplechase. Billy Roberts, a half length in the lead, skimmed over like a swallow. He had only to keep that Jockey Ray lifted Hackberry over, followed sharply by Russell on Lord Dundary. The four leaders were practically under a blanket, all seven in a flock and pounding away over the turf with the crowd cheering behind.

Mrs. "Jack" Gardner There.

The men and women who missed that first take at the water jump lost something worth seeing.

There was a gleam of fun now and then. They had hard work getting away in the fourth race on the flat. The five horses danced up and down at the barrier and plunged it it again and again till Starter Francis M. Ware had to release the straining rubber.

"No chance, no chance," shouted Mr. Ware, with a grim smile, as some impatient horse curvetted down the line. Then back they came and like Welf, who was assisting the starter, had to hustle across the track again and replace the barrier in front of the jumping horse. After this had happened three or four times the crowd began to laugh till Mr. Ware finally caught the horses in some sort of a line-up and gave them the track.

There were plenty of society names to be heard. Mrs. Jack Gardner was there, accompanied by Mr. George Proctor, of prestige, who is a well known panelist.

Mr. "Nat" Thayer was accompanied by Miss Cornelia, looking delightfully pretty in pale blue with a black hat and fancy pompon, and Miss Sallie, in pink with a crimson belt and crimson roses on her hat.

Among those also noticed were Mrs. A. R. Porter, Jr., A. W. Pollard, Dermod Fitzgerald, Arthur Stedman, F. B. Hunnewell, W. R. Goodwin, E. V. R. Thayer, Miss Mary Sargent, W. A. Tucker, J. F. Hurley, Miss Isabel Sargent, Mrs. Eva Williams, H. B. Rice, A. E. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cabot, Mrs. George A. Cotter and Charles Davis.

VASSAR NEEDS CASH; OIL KING RESIGNS

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 15.—John D. Rockefeller, Levi P. Morton and F. T. Gates have resigned as trustees of Vassar. Rockefeller resigned immediately, after President Taylor had announced that the college was in need of money for new buildings, as students' applications were compelled to live off the campus this year on account of lack of dormitories. Rockefeller says his health and business will not allow him to be a trustee of Vassar any longer.

PRETTY GIRL SAVES LIVES BY PROMPTNESS AT FIRE

GIRL WHOSE PROMPTNESS SAVED LIVES.

Pretty Margaret Henebery Ran in Her Night-Clothing to Sound Alarm.

Four plain clothes men of the Roxbury Crossing station have been detailed to investigate the incendiary fire in the tenement house-district on Rogers avenue, Roxbury, early today, when fifteen-year-old Margaret Henebery saved the lives of sleeping men and women.

The fire was in the rear shop of Lewis & Schlessinger. It was discovered that the place had been started in three different places among the rags and old junk with which the place is filled. At a late hour last night a short, heavily-built man was seen lurking about the place. There was also no one in sight when the firemen arrived, but the entire place was ablaze. Three houses were burned to death.

Within two feet of the junk shop is the double tenement house Nos. 1 and 2 Bay View place. It was from this house that Miss Henebery rushed to turn in the alarm.

She was aroused from her slumber by the cries of Mrs. Sarah Witham, who discovered the blaze. Finding out what the trouble was, Miss Henebery waited no time in talk, but directed Mrs. Witham to arouse the tenants in No. 1 Bay View place, which was threatened by the fire, while she herself without stopping for any extra clothing sped to Box 248 on Rogers avenue, a hundred yards from her home, and rung the alarm.

Mrs. Witham, who lives with her father, Charles Witham, and her two months' old daughter, Anna, on the second floor of No. 2 Bay View place, was awakened by cries shouting through the open window of her apartment and seeing her two year-old little girl in her arms, she ran to her father's room and aroused him, and then made her way through the dense smoke down the stairway and into the street. Miss Henebery lives with her parents on the second floor of No. 13 Rogers avenue, directly opposite Mrs. Witham's house.

In response to Miss Henebery's directions, Mrs. Witham ran into No. 1 Bay View place and aroused the persons living there. They were Mrs. Sarah J. Peacock and a boarder, Mr. Edward J. Hannon, on the second floor, and Mr. Edward J. Mealy, his wife and son on the third floor. All were obliged to flee scantily clad, their apartments being filled with smoke from the burning building.

The fire started among some old rags and paper on the first floor and before the discovery the whole building was ablaze and the flames were licking the sides and shooting through the windows of the adjoining building. It required the utmost skill of the firemen to save the tenement building on Bay View place, which had Miss Henebery not been keen prompt in her action not only this building but several others nearby would have been destroyed. Even as it was, the rapidly spreading flames, outside of the loss of the horses, was about $1,500.

POSTMISTRESS READ LETTERS

Mrs. Ford of Sioux City Scented a Scandal and Sought Verification.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., June 15.—Because she could not resist the temptation to open letters written by the wife of C. W. Coats, a business man, to two men, both prominent in their sphere, Mrs. Sadie Ford, the postmistress of Hill City, S. D., is under sentence for violating the postal laws.

It was only through the leniency of those with whom she had implored mercy through the intercession of Congressman E. W. Martin of Deadwood that the judge of the Federal Court was induced to impose the lightest possible sentence and to suspend that.

"I feared those letters would lead to wrong doing and might break up two or three homes," Mrs. Ford explained on the witness stand at Deadwood, "and I thought it my Christian duty to interfere. I didn't stop to consider what was my duty as postmistress. But even if I had, surely that thought would have occurred to me that the United States would not wish to become a party to a scandal. Nothing but curiosity was indeed the just couldn't resist the thought of the Coatses getting into the divorce court."

Letters addressed to F. C. Crocker, a prominent citizen, and C. E. McEachron, proprietor of a department store, were opened by Mrs. Ford repeatedly. They bore an Omaha postmark, and Mrs. Coats was visiting in Omaha, Mrs. Ford scented a scandal. She jumped at the conclusion that bits of gossip she had heard were well founded.

AID MOTHER TO RECOVER CHILD

John Reardon to Proceed Against Men Who Kidnapped Mary Grace Frawley.

John Reardon of No. 161 West Seventh street, South Boston, who has come to the aid of Mrs. Mary Frawley, mother of five-year-old Mary Grace Frawley, who was kidnapped last Saturday by her father, No. 55 Locust street, will today make an effort to recover the child and prosecute the two men who helped Mr. Frawley in the kidnapping.

Mr. Reardon will ask Judge Fallon of the South Boston District court for a warrant to-day.

"We have secured the assistance of Attorney Comerford," said Mr. Reardon, who is seventy years old, but whose determination is equal to that of a young man, "and I shall spare no money or time to prosecute the three men who stole little Mary from her mother. Every effort will first be given to the two men who assisted Mr. Frawley. After we are through with them proceedings will be instituted in the Plymouth county courts against the father."

"I am ready to help Mrs. Frawley in her trouble for any amount, and I will not let up until the little girl is restored to her mother."

KEEP EVIDENCE OF MALICE OUT OF LEE TRIAL

Story of Fatal Fight on the West Virginia Is Retold.

COURT-MARTIAL GOES ON

At the court-martial at the Charlestown Navy Yard of Gus Lee, the fireman on the U. S. S. West Virginia, who is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of a shipmate, Thomas Warren, Emmett Bruff repeated to-day his story of the fight between Lee and Warren. The direct examination is being conducted by Judge Advocate Lieutenant Chandler Campbell, and the cross-examination by Clarence V. Rowley, attorney for Lee.

"State what you saw Lee do just after the fight with Warren," said Judge Advocate Campbell.

"Lee seemed much excited and probably would have cut anyone who happened to be within his reach. I jumped out of the way myself. He looked as though he wanted to fight with anybody."

Attorney Rowley asked: "Did you see Lee do anything or make any move toward Warren at the time they were standing on the forecastle deck?"

"I heard him say that he would cut somebody, and that he could lick anybody on the ship."

Bruff then told how Warren and Lee got into the fight, and how Lee cut Warren with the razor.

On the court's ruling of yesterday that no evidence tending to show bad feeling existing between Lee and Warren shall be admitted, no reference was made to facts that may tend to show malice. The charge against Lee is manslaughter, and Counsel Rowley says as a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that he intends it shall not be changed.

He court then asked the witness: "Did you hear any threats made against the accused by any person during the time the fight between Warren and Lee was taking place?"

"No, sir, I did not," replied Bruff.

"Would it have been possible for the accused, Lee, to have cut Warren with a razor during the time Warren was hitting him?"

"No, I do not think so."

"Was the accused threatened by any one?"

First Words in the Fight.

"No one said anything to him until Warren exclaimed: 'Oh, he's cut me. He's got a razor.' Then Lee dashed down the hatchway with the entire crew after him."

$25,000 FIRE IN LYNN.

'NIGHT BEFORE' MUST BE QUIET, SAY POLICE

Bluecoats to Swarm in Charlestown To-morrow Night to Suppress Noisy Patriotism.

Unseeming Noises Are Banned To-morrow Night

You will see that no fireworks are set off, or other unusual or unseeming noises will be made before 4 a. m. of the 17th inst. and after 12 o'clock, 4 a. m. being the hour fixed by the city government for setting off fireworks.

Arrest any person who violates the law or ordinances which regulate this matter.—Order of Superintendent Pierce to Captain Wyman of Charlestown.

The police officials are determined to have a quiet "night before" for the June 17th celebration in Charlestown, and Superintendent of Police Pierce, acting under the orders of the police commission, has issued orders to Captain Wyman of the Charlestown precinct, to preserve quiet until 4 a. m.

No ringing cow bells, drumming on tin cans or setting off fireworks of any description will be allowed, and the bluecoats are expected to keep all rebellious hoodlums in check. Superintendent Pierce has decided to spend the night before and day of the celebration in the district, making his headquarters at Station 15.

The following order was sent to Captain Wyman to-day by the superintendent:

"You will see that no fireworks are set off, or other unusual and unseeming noises will be made before 4 a. m. of the 17th inst. and 12 midnight, 4 a. m. being the hour fixed by the city government for setting off fireworks.

"Arrest any person who violates the law or ordinances which regulate this matter, so that the night before the 17th inst. and the morning of that day up to 4 o'clock may be perfectly quiet."

The superintendent, when asked what he considered "unseeming noises," declared that ringing cow bells, banging tin cans, blowing horns and the other numerous methods used by young America to produce noise, came under that category.

There will be bluecoats galore in the district the night before and the day of the celebration. To-morrow at 6:30 p. m. a detail of seven sergeants and 100 patrolmen will be sent to the district in addition to the regular force, and they will remain on duty until 1 a. m. on the 17th, and be relieved by a like number of sergeants and officers, who will remain on duty until 8 a. m. For the afternoon parade five additional sergeants and 200 patrolmen will be on duty, and Sergeant Boyd, following the banquet there was a discussion on educational matters.

MAY HAVE 90 CENT GAS AHEAD OF TIME LIMIT

Gas Companies Met To-day and Voted to Merge With Big Trust.

MAY YIELD TO PUBLIC

Within one year from to-day Boston will have ninety-cent gas. If the gas company officials yield to public pressure the reduction will be given before the legal limit expires.

The directors of the several gas companies which are to be included in the Boston Consolidated Gas Company met to-day and voted to merge their companies with the Consolidated.

J. Edward Addicks, as a stockbroker in the Boston, Roxbury, South Boston and Back Bay Gas Company voted his stock in favor of the consolidation on the ground that the price offered by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company was too low.

The directors of the Massachusetts Pipe Line Gas Company, over which there was much controversy at the legislative hearings on the gas consolidation, have already voted to become a part of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, and the Pipe Line as an individual company, is now a thing of the past.

The legislative act of 1905, which prevented the "gas grab," permitted by the act of 1903, Chapter 17, requires the Boston Consolidated Gas Company to reduce the price of gas to 90 cents within twelve months of the time of acquisition of the eight gas companies to be included in the consolidation. Such acquisition, according to the plans of the Gas Trust, will be effected to-day.

It is possible that Boston will have 90-cent gas before the law's limit requiring it is reached. The officials of the Gas Trust, by accepting this week the terms of the new gas bill, have admitted that they can sell gas at 90 cents per thousand feet and make satisfactory profits on this account it is expected that they will yield to the inevitable gracefully and reduce the price of gas before the time fixed by the Legislature. Within a year at the latest, however, gas will be sold at 90 cents per thousand feet.

A meeting of the directors of these seven gas companies was held to-day and the merger into the Boston Consolidated Gas Company effected, the Massachusetts Pipe Line Gas Company, the eighth company, having already been absorbed.

Boston Gas Light Company, Brookline Gas Light Company, Roxbury Gas Light Company, Dorchester Gas Light Company, Jamaica Plain Gas Light Company, South Boston Gas Light Company and Bay State Gas Company.

TAFT PRAISES ROOSEVELT AS A PEACEMAKER

Secretary in Commencement Address Talks of the Far Eastern Situation.

TO STUDENTS OF MIAMI

OXFORD, O., June 15.—At the annual commencement exercises of Miami University to-day, Secretary of War Taft delivered a carefully prepared address on the principal international and domestic issues of the day.

Referring to the successful part of the United States is playing in the effort to bring the war in the Far East to an end, he said:

"President Roosevelt," he said, "has felt justified in speaking to the belligerents a message from the world that the time has come for a settlement by peaceful means of the controversies between the two nations, and for an ending of the awful loss of life and property, and of the unsettling disturbance of business that a continuance of the war entails. The personality of the President alone has given to his offer the willingness of the powers to allow him to intervene. Confidence in his impartiality and integrity have doubtless aided our national prestige in the matter, and consequently to be wished."

The Philippines a Burden.

Regarding the Philippine Islands the attention the secretary expressed confidence that not even those most jealous of the prerogatives of the Senate would be heard to object to the modus vivendi arranged by the President for the collection of the revenues of the republic.

On the general subject of the Philippines Mr. Taft said that he did not for a moment contend that for years they would be anything but a burden to the United States.

"They have been forced upon us against our will," he declared, "as trusts, to be administered, and we should be recreant to our high duties as a nation if we failed to meet the obligation.

"We believe that ultimately self-government is the best for all people, and that all people can be prepared by constant labor and attention to enjoy the blessings of civil liberty."

A great abuse in the body politic, he said, was the increase in the number of divorces granted by the courts. Last year there were 612 divorces out of every 10,000 marriages. One remedy would be the enactment of uniform laws of marriage and divorce by Congress.

The secretary favored larger salaries for federal officials. He said the salaries of the President and Vice-President were entirely insufficient. Ambassadors of the United States to many cases unable to pay more than their house rent out of their salaries. He declared that it was no exaggeration to say that it cost every Cabinet officer double the salary he receives, while the salary paid by the United States is $8,000—to five in Washington and do the entertaining that he is compelled to do.

AGED SINGER SAYS MISS WETHERELL WAS NEVER MORE THAN A SISTE

J. W. HUTCHINSON AND MISS WETHERELL ARM AND ARM IN FLORIDA.

On the back of this photograph, taken in 1901, of the aged anti-slavery singer a nd the noted lecturer, who is reported to be contemplating a suit for breach of promise against him, is the inscription: "Sister and I. Florida, 1901." Mr. Hutchinson was eighty-one years old when the photograph was taken.

J. W. Hutchinson, Age 85, Declares He Will Fight Any Attempt to "Gain Tribute" From Him.

John W. Hutchinson, the famous old-time anti-slavery singer, who has been threatened with a breach of promise suit by Miss Ellen F. Wetherell, a noted lecturer on slavery and woman's suffrage, declares that she was only a sister to him.

No suit has yet been brought, but Miss Wetherell has put the case into the hands of a lawyer, who has asked the aged singer to settle. He says there's nothing to settle—that he and Miss Wetherell have always been close friends, but that he never thought of marrying her.

Mr. Hutchinson, who is eighty-five, naively remarks in his conversation with a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN that he was dumfounded when, as he alleges, Miss Wetherell asked him to marry her recently, because at that time he was engaged to "a certain woman." He said:

Friendship Was Platonic.

"I never made love to Miss Wetherell and in no way during my long acquaintance with her have I ever given her to understand that I considered her more than a friend. In fact, our friendship I always supposed was that of brother and sister, and while I have indulged her with presents and attentions and have assisted her in many ways, I have always done so because of my great respect for her and her work, and because she seemed to be of similar temperament. She is radical and so am I.

"Great was my surprise a little over a year ago when Miss Wetherell first intimated to me that she had taken my attentions seriously and was led to believe I had contemplated marrying her. At that time I was at her home during her illness, when, after some remark I had made, she rose from her couch and asked me if I did not intend to marry her. I was dumfounded, and then I told her that I should never ask her to marry me nor had I ever dreamed of such a step. As a matter of fact, I was then engaged to a certain woman and I supposed that she knew this.

Refused to Settle.

"A short time ago I received a letter from her attorney informing me that she had requested him to bring proceedings against me for alleged breach of promise and asking me if I did not care to settle. I sought advice and positively refused to give up one cent."

"Then you have never asked Miss Wetherell to be your wife?" asked the reporter.

"No, sir, most emphatically, no."

"But it is true, is it not, Mr. Hutchinson, that you have spent much time in the company of Miss Wetherell, and that you have always taken a great interest in her welfare?"

"Yes, it is true that I have been in her company much in the last twenty years, but owing to our mutual interests in the cause of woman's suffrage and in the inauguration of radical reforms for the betterment of mankind, you can see why I should have been drawn to Miss Wetherell. Still, my regard has never been other than that of a brother to sister, and I certainly thought all the time that Miss Wetherell knew this to be the extent of my regard for her.

"I will fight any attempt to gain a tribute from me, and if a suit is brought against me I will be prepared to answer it. I repeat there has never been any understanding between Miss Wetherell and me on the question of marriage. Our friendship was that of brother and sister only, I supposed."

Mr. Hutchinson several years ago figured in another breach of promise suit when a Mrs. Macdonald, a middle-aged widow of Lynn, now married to a Lynn grocer, brought suit against him to recover $5,000 damages. The suit was settled.

Miss Ellen F. Wetherell, who lives with her sister, Mrs. John W. Berry, at No. 105 Franklin street, greeted a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN pleasantly, but was loth to discuss the case.

"As it is true, Miss Wetherell, that you intend to bring suit against Mr. Hutchinson for breach of promise?" asked the reporter.

Denies He Ever Thought of Marrying Noted Lecturer on Woman Suffrage and Slavery.

"I do not care to answer the question at this time. No, I will not deny or affirm the report that the matter is in the hands of an attorney. I am too wrought up over the matter to discuss it with anyone."

ALLEGED 'DAMN' BY MRS. GOULD COSTS $24,183

Jury Returns Verdict in Favor of Architect Despite Her Denial.

COSTLY PLANS FOR CASTLE

MINEOLA, L. I., June 15.—Basing their verdict on the word "damn," the jury in the case of Architect Abner J. Haydel, who sued Howard Gould for $50,000 for plans for a Kilkenny castle, decided today that the young millionaire should pay the plaintiff $29,183.75, less $5,000 paid on account.

That is the sum which Mr. Gould pays for a castle in the air—and, presumably, taking the Judge's charge into consideration, for his wife's little cuss word. Mrs. Gould on the stand denied that she ever called Haydel "a damned architect."

This is how the Judge in charging the jury referred to that phase of the case: "Underlying all contracts are certain rules of language and speech which we are presumed to live up to in our relations with our fellow men. Did Mrs. Gould say what he says she did? Did she inflict such irritation as to justify him in saying, 'I shall not return again?' The great question as between man and man is was he so humiliated by bitter, severe and degrading treatment that he was justified in refusing to go back again?"

She Denied Profanity.

So it is seen that the big and eloquent "damn" figured largely in the verdict. This question was asked Mrs. Gould on the stand:

"Did you call Mr. Haydel a damned architect?"

"I did not," shouted the woman.

And that was all of it. Haydel looked shocked; as greatly shocked as he must have been the night the alleged epithet was used when, as he testified, the word came with such force and vigor that he turned to Mr. Gould and demanded protection.

So much gained, Monfort, counsel for the defence, delivered a quick order at Haydel. He didn't charge any unusual bad language to the architect, but he asked:

"Provoked as to that night, had the plaintiff made any apologies to you for his language?"

"He had," replied Mrs. Gould, eyeing Haydel and lifting her lip vigorously.

"On how many occasions?"

"Several."

"Before the interview closed did you request Mr. Haydel to meet you again?"

"My husband did."

"I don't ask whether he would?"

"I don't think he did."

Gave No Approval.

"Now, Mrs. Gould," said Monfort, taking up a new thread, "Mr. Haydel says that you approved the plans for the grill room."

"That is not true," said Mrs. Gould bluntly, looking the architect straight in the eye.

"He has testified that on one occasion when he produced a plan known as scheme No. 17, that you and your husband approved it, and he wrote 'Accepted' upon it in your presence; did any such thing occur?"

"Never!" cried Mrs. Gould.

"You gave considerable time to the consideration of the plans submitted, didn't you?"

"I've been devoting my entire time to it," exclaimed Mrs. Gould wearily. "I worked at them every bit as long as he did. Day after day; hours and hours and hours."

One got a mental picture here of the wife of a millionaire bending over a table while before her were stretched longitudinal views, exteriors, interiors, grill gates, sectional plans, etc., as the hours of the clock swung around, and no rest came for the woman of wealth, though the whistles had blown long since and the day laborers had departed for their homes.

"What, if anything," asked Mr. Monfort, somewhat coldly, "did he do respecting the changes at his own motion?"

They Worked Together.

"We worked together," replied Mrs. Gould with a sigh. "I sat at the table as long as he did. He would take the plans with him when he returned to New York and would come back with change after change."

Haydel nodded in assent here. The only difference at that point between him and Mrs. Gould was that, according to his contention, the changes he brought back were made at her suggestion.

"He came one day," continued Mrs. Gould, falling into a satirical vein, "with a plan for a castle sixty feet longer than the ground on which it was to be built."

GRANDSON OF KING OSCAR WEDS TO-DAY

Takes as His Bride King Edward's Niece, Margaret of Connaught.

ROYALTY AT CEREMONY

WINDSOR, June 15.—When they saw how Windsor had been turned into a bower of bunting in honor of their nuptials, Princess Margaret of Connaught, niece of King Edward and granddaughter of Queen Victoria, and Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden were glad that they insisted on being married here to-day instead of in London, as was first planned. The bridegroom is the son of the Swedish Crown Prince. The Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Bishop of Oxford and other clergymen, officiated at the marriage ceremony, which was performed in St. George's Chapel in the grounds of famous Windsor Castle.

The chapel was filled with royal and distinguished guests, including the members of the diplomatic corps, who had come to Windsor from London by special train. Members of the British and foreign royal families occupied the front seats, behind them were the diplomats and their wives, and the less important guests filled the body of the building.

Princesses as Attendants.

The bride entered the chapel with her father, the Duke of Connaught, and walked up the aisle to a wedding hymn, sung by the St. George's choir. She wore a beautiful white satin dress, trimmed with Irish lace, and with a long train. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls. Behind her were four bridesmaids, her sister, Princess Patricia of Connaught, and her cousins, Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg and Princess Victoria of Battenburg and Princess Victoria Mary, the eight-year-old daughter of the Prince of Wales.

The train bearer was Princess Victoria, and after her in the bridal procession walked Princess Patricia alone. Next came Princess Beatrice and Princess Ena together. Wreaths of shamrocks and natural grasses were the floral decorations of the bridesmaids, who were dressed in blue silk.

The wedding procession was a beautiful pageant, but the populace who assembled as near the castle gates as they were permitted to stand, caught no glimpse of it. Everything connected with the wedding was confined to the castle grounds. All the streets and houses of the little royal borough were decorated with bunting, flags and flowers.

Prince Gustavus Adolphus awaited his bride at the altar, near which were gathered King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the Crown Prince of Sweden. The brief ceremony of the Church of England was used and at the conclusion the choir sang "Thank We Our God."

The party left the church and drove to Windsor Castle in state carriages, escorted by Life Guards.

Before the marriage register was signed by the bride and groom, the King of England, the Crown Prince of Sweden, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught met in the state apartments, which were thrown open to the guests, to receive the congratulations of the royal couple, after which a wedding dinner was served. The honeymoon will be passed in Ireland.

SECESSION MOVE IN ROYAL ARCANUM

Reported Action of Michigan Council in Opposing New Rates Stirs Officials.

NEW PLANS SUGGESTED

Grand Councils which accede from the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum because of the new assessment rate, over which there is the greatest row that has ever occurred in the order, lose all rights of participation in the widows' and orphans' fund, according to Supreme Secretary W. O. Robson.

It was reported that the Michigan Council had voted to refuse to accept the new rate and had voted to also secede from the national organization and form a new one.

"Just what has taken place in Detroit I do not know," said Mr. Robson to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "There is no meeting of the Grand Council of that State called for, and I do not believe the vote could have been passed save by a few perhaps of the officials.

"But they can't secede. They have no control over the widows' and orphans' fund. We could knock them out of existence within twenty-four hours and leave them nothing if they should pass such a vote.

"Will Soon Blow Over."

"This hot-air talk about refusing to accept the new assessment will soon blow over. Already there have begun to come to the letters from men who are in sympathy with the new rate and who believe that it should go through. There is not the slightest chance that the Supreme Council will reconsider its action. If it did the Royal Arcanum would be in the hands of a receiver inside of ten years."

Despite Mr. Robson's optimistic views, a number of councils in the State have held meetings with a view to bringing about a change in the proposed system of assessment, a system that falls most heavily on the old members.

Chief among the plans advocated are those providing that the individual councils shall care for their own older members by paying the increased assessments from the council funds.

New Plans Suggested.

The majority of the members of the Royal Arcanum, encouraged by the calmer feeling which has prevailed for the past few days, are hopeful that something will be done before October 1, when the new rates go into effect, to change the plans of the Supreme Council. Elm Council of Somerville is preparing resolutions asking that a special meeting of the Supreme Council be held.

Hugh Fenchel of Elm Council has brought forward a proposition that each member of the order, now 315,000 in number, be called upon to pay two extra assessments each year. That is, if a man at present is paying $3.04 twelve times a year, he should be called upon to pay the same amount fourteen times per year. "This," he says, "would be treating all equally well and would relieve the situation."

The emergency fund of the order had a balance of $2,065,037.71 on hand on April 1, 1905, and pamphlets were issued about that time saying: "The order is to be congratulated upon the fact that up to the present time it has not become necessary to apply any portion of this fund to the payment of current death losses."

It is now said that about $500,000 of this fund has been drawn and applied to the payment of such benefits.

AUTO FRIGHTENS HORSE; MAN KILLED

PEABODY, June 15.—John F. Herrick, seventy-four years old, a well-known farmer and politician of this town, was instantly killed by being thrown from his carriage while driving near Lynnfield Centre. His horse took fright at an automobile, dashed up an embankment, and the axle of the carriage broke. A Mrs. Foster, who was in the carriage with him at the time, was thrown out, but was not seriously hurt.

ARMY SAVES CAPITAL FOR SECOND TIME

Monitor Terror and Gunboat Siren Are Sunk by Fort Hunt Batteries.

FIGHT LASTED ALL NIGHT

FORT HUNT, Va., June 15.—The batteries in Forts Hunt and Washington, fourteen miles below the capital, were engaged almost continuously from 9:30 last night until 6 o'clock to-day in one of the most picturesque passes of the present army and navy exercises.

The engagement closed with an attack at 5 o'clock by the double-turreted monitor Terror and the converted gunboat Siren. These vessels passed up the river under cover of the fog shortly before 5 p. m. At that time signal stations had informed Colonel Roberts of Fort Washington, that the ships were advancing, but at 4:50, when the Terror completed Mount Vernon, according to telegraphic information, it was impossible to discern objects more than three miles below the fort.

Under the circumstances Colonel Roberts issued orders for "an independent action." Battery commanders immediately got their individual range finders busy and waited for the appearance of the ships. The action commenced at 5:10, when Captain Wilson, commanding Mount Vernon battery at Fort Hunt, had a glimpse through a rift in the mist of the Terror at 2,000 yards. He opened with his three eight-inch guns and fired ten rounds before the twelve-inch batteries at Fort Washington found the range, and commenced firing.

Cleared Out the Mines.

A few minutes later the Siren was made out, and both ships, as they sailed up the stream, received a hot fire from every one of the batteries on both sides of the river. The range decreased until, as the ships were passing the fort, the guns were being fired point blank. The order to cease firing was made at 5:38.

Just after the boats passed, the tide lifted, having covered their advance all the way up. Above Fort Washington the boats turned and returned down the river. As they passed between the fortifications, the artillerymen manned the parapets and gave three cheers for the navy. The Terror replied by saluting with her fog horn.

The Siren and Terror had remained throughout the night below Marshal Point, and sent half a dozen whaleboats and barges into the mine field to lift mines and countermine in preparation for the attack.

About 4 o'clock to-day a party of sailors landed at Fort Hunt. Later they said they came ashore for a drink of water. All landing parties, however, are prohibited in these exercises, so the commanding officer turned out a detail and there was a theoretical hand-to-hand conflict between the gunners and the blue jackets, after which the sailors were permitted to return to their ships.

The constructive result of the morning battle was the utter demolition of the navy contingent and the second saving of the national capital. Sixty-six shots were fired by the eight-inch gun battery in Fort Hunt, in addition to one hundred shots from the twelve-inch guns across the river. Theoretically, only four shots each were necessary to sink the Terror and Siren.

1,035 PASSENGERS ON THE SAXONIA

The Cunard steamship Saxonia arrived in this port to-day from Liverpool after an uneventful voyage marked by pleasant weather and calm seas. The big ship reached her dock just before noon. There were 72 saloon, 156 second cabin and 827 steerage passengers aboard.

MEDFORD DECIDES TO OWN LIGHTING PLANT

DISGUSTED WITH SERVICE, ALDERMEN VOTE FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Disgusted at the quality of gas and service given by the Malden Gas Company, which supplies Melrose, Medford, Malden and Everett, the Medford Board of Aldermen has declared for a municipal lighting plant, and it is likely that some of the other cities mentioned may take part in the movement. Of the twenty-one members of the board, eighteen were present when the action was taken. Alderman Addy dissenting voice was that of Alderman Clifford H. Brewer of Ward 5. The order was introduced by Alderman Henry Sterling. It reads as follows:

Be it ordered, that the city of Medford be authorized, and is hereby authorized, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 56 of the Revised Laws of Massachusetts, to construct, purchase or lease and maintain and operate within its limits, either alone or in connection with one or more cities, a plant for the manufacture and distribution of gas or electricity for furnishing light for municipal use, and light, heat and power, except for the operation of electric cars, for the use of its inhabitants.

Pending Since January.

The order has been pending in the committee and on the table since last January. It finally received the unanimous indorsement of the Committee on Electric Lines and Lights. The committee unanimously recommended the adoption of the order recently, and then it was placed before all the board.

An interest was made during the past Winter to reduce the price and improve the service by a joint committee composed of Melrose, Medford, Malden and Everett. A committee of five, consisting of the Mayors of all four cities made a concerted movement to secure better conditions, without success.

These futile efforts to secure a reasonable reduction and better service resulted in this week's action by the Medford Board of Aldermen, and it is believed that the other cities interested will follow Medford's lead, as they are all anxious to obtain lower rates and better service. Alderman Sterling said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"This is the first step in the right direction. The preliminary step toward the establishment of a municipal lighting plant which will mean better service and cheaper gas for Medford. We have been disgusted with the methods of the Malden Gas Company. They have treated us in about time to do something in their behalf.

Alderman Herbert E. Staples, one of the leading lawyers of Medford, said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"The committee appointed at the meeting of the Medford City Council I introduced in order for a committee to be appointed to investigate the advisability of establishing a municipal plant for lighting purposes was taken by the Sinnehan and Melrose city committees. The committee had several joint meetings and corresponded with several cities where municipal plants existed.

"It was proposed that a plant be established in Medford on the Mystic River to supply the city's needs. The term of office expired before action was taken on the committee's report, and it remained for the Board of Aldermen this year and heartily indorse the Sterling order as it is. We always been a great believer in the idea. For several years ago Mayor Hall of Medford could make gas at a great saving to the city, but the Legislature has consulted Medford is peculiarly adapted to municipal ownership on account of a municipal plant.

"The coal to be used in making gas could be brought up Mystic River and on the ride water in barges direct to the plant, thus saving the cost of rent or handling it which most cities have to pay.

"I think a committee of seven should be appointed for both gas and electricity. This action on the part of the Board of Aldermen is a step in the right direction. The citizens of Medford have suffered long enough by the gas and electric light service given by the Malden Gas Company."

Alderman Michael F. Dwyer said: "You may say that despite the slight reduction on the part of the gas company as the result of our joint agitation last winter I am not satisfied with it in any sense and mean to have it reduced to a reasonable price. Our recent unsuccessful fight for price dropped from $1.30 to due largely to the magnificent work of the BOSTON AMERICAN in fighting the gas octopus both root and branch. Without its assistance we might not have succeeded in doing what we did."

NEWS OF LABOR.

Six hundred and fifty votes of the 1,750 votes cast at the election of Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 have been counted. For recording secretary, Henry Abrahams has received 316 votes and Charles Claus 303. This is the principal contest. The Socialist element of the organization has recently plans against Abrahams because of their activity in the Socialist party, he being elected by the Civic Federation.

For this reason it is said the Socialists hope to defeat Mr. Abrahams and elect Mr. McCarthy as delegates to the Central Labor Union, notwithstanding the fact that these two men have been the most active men in the election of officers. With 650 ballots counted, Messrs. Abrahams and McCarthy are each receiving 316 votes, respectively, of the nine men to be elected to the Central Labor Union.

The vote at present is as follows: Delegates to the Boston Central Labor Union: Patrick Mahoney, 309; Charles Claus, 316; James Smith, 305; Henry Abrahams, 316; Thomas Wooster, 271; Frank McCarthy, 247; Charles Collins, 246; John Sullivan, 246; Charles Collins, 246; Cornelius McCarthy, 212; Peter Miller, 206; William Standen, 212; Frank Baker, 162; Thomas ——, Dolan, 146; Cornelius McCarthy, 146; T. B. Bradley, 118.

Delegates to convention of State Branch, A. F. of L., Patrick Mahoney, 338; Charles Claus, 341; James Smith, 337; Frank H. McCarthy, 229; William Standen, 335. Three men to be elected.

CHARGES OF COLLUSION.

President Peter W. Collins of the Boston Central Labor Union has received a communication from the Metropolitan Park Guild, stating that Governor Douglas will act on the charges against certain park contracts by members of the Metropolitan Park Commission next Monday, when he returns to this city.

TO HOLD CONVENTION.

At a meeting of the executive board of Metal Polishers, Buffers, Brass Molders and Brass and Silver Workers' Union, it was announced that word had been received from the headquarters in New York that an international convention would be held this year.

Word was also received from the International Headquarters at New York that Edward A. Lynch had been defeated for international president by 300 votes, and that George E. Lovett had been elected as vice-president of District No. 4, defeating George Dillon of Worcester by 80 votes.

The executive board voted to support the demands of Chandelier Workers' Union to go into effect Sept. 1.

PATTERN MAKERS MEET.

By a referendum vote, the members of Pattern Makers' Association have voted the 8-hour convention held in Philadelphia. The association also went on record as being against the agitation for the 9-hour contests per member.

After addresses by Robert A. Cahlman of the Metal Workers' Union and Business Agent Driscoll of Carpenters' Union, Local 25, the union voted to levy an assessment in aid of the striking Lithographers' Union. Five dollars were donated the locked-out cutlery workers of Troy, N. Y., and $10 each to appeals by Misses Josephine Dupuis and Rosie Benson.

It was announced that $20 had been realized on the sale of the late Mr. Bowditch to the late John Donaldson, a member of the union. This amount will be given to the widow of the deceased. Two applications for membership were received.

DONATIONS FOR STRIKERS.

Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Central Labor Union acknowledges the receipt of the following donations:

For the locked-out cutlery starchers of Troy, N. Y., Painters' Union, $10; Coopers' Union, $10; Barbers' Union, $10.

For the striking Chicago teamsters: Coopers' Union No. 18, $10; Barbers' Union, $15; Electrical Workers' Union, $10; Goods, $10; Theatrical Mechanics' Union, $10; Fire Fighters' Union, $10; Brass Workers' Union, $10; Brass Workers' Union No. 10, $10; Chandelier Workers' Union No. 18, $10.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS.

The following additional nominations have been made by the Electrical Workers' Union No. 103: Recording secretary, A. E. Sanborn; inspector, William H. Clifford. The question of parliamentary law which was referred to the executive board. Two new members were initiated.

CONSIDER C. L. U. RESOLUTION.

The resolution adopted by the Boston Central Labor Union relative to granting the various building trades unions a larger representation at the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which is to be at Pittsfield in November, will be brought before the executive board, which is in session this week at Scranton, Pa.

LABOR NOTES.

The pending strike of the Labor Association of the stonecutters and Electricians Union of Quincy is said to exist at present.

J. K. Hobbins of Wisconsin, general organizer of the Machine Hackmen and Coach Drivers' Union, will address a special meeting this afternoon at 3:30 at Walker Hall, No. 80 to 86 Washington street.

Carpenters' Union No. 33 will observe its twenty-seventh anniversary tonight with a grand concert, ball and banquet at Wells Memorial Hall, No. 387 Washington street.

The Central Labor Union executive board holds a very important meeting tonight at Wells Memorial Hall.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 holds a special meeting this evening at Central Hall to consider an agreement trade matter.

BABY'S ECZEMA

Top of Head Covered with Scales Which Peeled off Taking Hair with Them.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Now Six Years Old with Thick Hair and Clean Scalp. Cure Permanent.

"My baby was six weeks old when the top of her head became covered with thick scales, which soon began to peel and come off, taking the hair with it. It would soon form again and be as bad as before. My doctor said it was Eczema, and prescribed an ointment, which did no good. I then tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed her head in warm water and Cuticura Soap and gently combed the scales off. They did not come back and her hair grew out fine and thick. She is now a year and a half old, and has no trace of Eczema."

ple of the rout with them on the road, so George needn't be afraid this time.

Sir Richard Cooley, the former outfielder of the Boston Nationals, who is now overlaying centre garden for the Tigers, received a warm welcome from the assembled fans. Sir Richard is a new man. He is playing with ginger and batting the ball quite hard. Manager Armour won't stand for any loafing on the part of his men, and as a result they are on the jump all the time.

The Boston baseball public will be interested in watching Schaefer, the new second baseman. He is one of the finds of the year and is covering second lag with the best of them.

FINE BASEBALL WEATHER.

The weather continued warm, and another large crowd was out to see the open ing game with the Tigers. The Country Club races are affecting the grand stand attendance, many regular patrons of the swell section being members of the Brookline organization, but the races cut no figure with the died-in-the-wool bleacherites, and the stand back of first base contained its usual crowd of enthusiasts.

Manager Armour announced that the veteran Kitson would pitch today. He held the Champs down to two hits the last time he faced them, but that's all right. It was good getting he would not repeat the stunt.

Tigers in Town.

It was a tired crowd of Tigers that struck town this morning, as the quick jump from Philadelphia, after a stiff series with the Athletics made them weary, and as soon as they got to the Copley Square Hotel Captain Coughlin ordered all to take a good rest, and they needed no urging.

The Detroits are here to play a four game series with the Champs, and expect to make a good showing in the limit.

Manager Armour was seen at the hotel this morning and he said: "We hope to break even with the Champs in this city. The team has done fine work on it's first Eastern trip and some of the men have not been in the best of shape. We broke even in St. Louis and Chicago, won two out of three in Washington and lost two out of three in Philadelphia. The game yesterday belonged to either team till the last man was out.

"We can't seem to get ahead more than a couple of games beyond the .500 mark in the standing, but hang around that mark pretty well.

Few New Men.

"The team is not changed much from last season, and the few men I have picked up have not had a chance to get into the game.

"Rockuiller, a catcher from McKeesport, and Ford from Minneapolis, a pitcher, are with the team, but as long as the regulars hang out they will not have an opportunity.

"Egan, Doran is with us, and with Lowdell, the old Georgetown catcher, will do all the backstopping.

"Dougherty was out of the game in Philadelphia on account of sickness, but he will play in the games here.

McIntyre, the leftfielder, is out of the game troubled with rheumatism and Bobby Lowe is filling his garden very satisfactorily.

The batting order has been changed around several times, but now O'Leary is leading off with the Boston favorite, Dick Cooley, following him.

Charley Hickman is back at first base as his services troubled him in the field and Crawford is now playing the outfield.

Manager Armour still has a warm spot in his heart for his old Cleveland team as he says how his old pals were doing and was glad to hear that they made a hard fight with the champs.

As the Detroits play at Lynn next Monday, Armour was busy trying to get in communication with Fred Lake of the Shoe City team to get him to start for here as early as he wants to get the boat train to New York on the same day.

YALE FRESH OARSMEN NG PHENOMS

YALE CREW HEADQUARTERS, Gale's Ferry, Ct., June 15.—A half-mile race between the Yale varsity and freshman crews showed again to-day that the regulars are coming back into form. The varsity caught water first and led all the way, finishing a full length to the good. The freshmen blamed a poor start for most of their trouble, but were not together during their row.

Because of the hot wave the coaches feared to give their crews any more work. Head Coach Rice gave Fish, Fetc., and to-day that the general shakeup of two days was not getting the results he hoped for, and that the eight would have to be in pretty nearly the original order tomorrow.

Admirers of the Harvard freshman crew to-day visited the Yale quarters and offered odds that they would lend Yale 10608 at the annual class race two weeks from today.

TOO HOT FOR HARD WORK AT RED TOP

HARVARD CREW QUARTERS, RED TOP, Ct., June 15.—The work of the crews this forenoon was very light, the examinations still being held here under the supervision of two proctor's from Cambridge.

The weather was uncomfortably hot, and Coach Wray decided that he would not lay out any hard work.

The varsity did not get out until noon and only went down to Cow Point and back up river. More attention was paid to form, and none stopped.

The freshmen went down as far as the Naval Station and returned in two stretches at about a twenty-eight stroke.

The varsity four tried a racing start and Farley put the stroke up to thirty-two. It is probable that the two four-oar crews will have a ha.-mile speed trial late this afternoon.

SAM CRAWFORD OF TIGERS.

It was a happy thought on the part of Manager Armour when he put old Sam Crawford on first base for Detroit. He had been playing right field for years and his transfer to first base early this season was in the nature of an experiment. But the veteran has made good in great style and the way he has been hitting the ball is nothing short of first class.

TENNEY'S MEN TO PLAY REDS TODAY

CINCINNATI, June 15.—Tenney's Boston National team will open up a four-game series here today. The Reds, pleased with their grand showing against Hugh Duffy's Quakers, who have been playing good ball this season, are determined to take away every game from the Bostonians.

It cannot be said that the Boston team hasn't been going some this week. They played three games in Pittsburg against the Pirates and won the majority of the games.

Joe Kelley Satisfied.

Joe Kelley is satisfied that his team is made of championship timber and believes that with a little luck they will be right close to the leaders. Therefore they will endeavor to take advantage of the opportunity of playing such a recognized weak team as the Cincinnati Nationals.

It is only a short time since the Reds played in the Hub here and in the two games played the Boston contingent carried off the top honors. The time Fred Tenney says they are ready to repeat the performance.

Shakeup in Batting Order.

Now that Needham is back in the game and with Dolan in right field, Tenney believes that he has a team capable of playing fast ball against any team in the country. There has been a shakeup in the batting order, and the boys seem to have been benefited by it.

It would not be surprising to see "Cy" Young on the rubber for the visitors today, and as he shut out the Reds in Boston, Joe Kelley has a great dread of this now famous twirler. Jack Harper may work for the home team.

In Pittsburg, yesterday, Vic Willis, who was hammered out of the box on Tuesday, pitched good ball and was also a slugging. The Pirates used three box artists—Mike Lynch, Pat Flaherty and a giant named Moore.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Suburban Handicap, considered the greatest event of the racing season, will be run for the twenty-second time at the opening of Sheepshead Bay track to-day. Twelve horses will fight for supremacy and a purse of $20,000.

The sky is clear and the day warm, while the track is in nigh perfect shape. With such conditions it would not be surprising to see all records go by the boards.

Beldame is the choice of the bookies to-day, while Delhi, who won the Brooklyn Handicap, is the next choice.

The Picket, the western horse who startled the world a few years ago, will not be sent to the post. An ulcer on the jaw has come back because of the pain it gives him he will not go against the bell.

The Whitney stable will have no candidate in the Suburban this year. Irish Lad, an idol of the public in his day, has gone bad and been withdrawn.

Colonial Girl, the mare that won the World's Fair handicap at St. Louis, will be pitted against the 3-year-olds while 10 or 12 pounds of the foran she showed then.

Proper will again try for the laurels, and he is all ready to run the race of his life, and the horse that beats him to the wire will not be far from the money. One thing will operate to Proper's favor in the Suburban—all tracks are alike to him. He will run his race whether the going is fast or slow.

Adbell and Proper are the horses the knowing ones favor to vanquish Beldame and Delhi, although there are a number of others who have performed most creditably, and it would not be an amazing spectacle to see an unheralded jockey riding proudly borne down the track in front of the thousands in the grand stands in the floral horse shoe.

TIGERS WILL PLAY CORNELL

PRINCETON, N. J., June 15.—The Princeton football schedule for next Fall has been announced. Nine games appear on the schedule. No game will be played with Annapolis or West Point, and a game with Columbia will take the place of one of these. A game with Cornell will be played next year, however, notwithstanding the rumors to the contrary. The Dartmouth game will be played here November 4 and the Yale game at New Haven November 18.

COBURN PITCHED A WONDERFUL GAME

The Harvard nine gave a masterly exhibition of ball playing on Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon in the 5-1 victory over Columbia. The Crimson nine fielded a well-nigh perfect game, and in addition batted opportunely and ran bases well. The real feature of the game, however, was the pitching of Paul Coburn. The giant Crimson twirler held forth in the box for six innings. In that time he allowed one hit and struck ten men out. Coburn had a bad spell in the first inning. A base on balls, a single—the only Columbia safe drive of the day—and a dead ball put three Columbians on bases without any out. Coburn issued another pass, forcing the Jerseyites' only tally across the plate. He then pulled himself together and retired the side without any further damage.

Columbia's Lead Was Overcome.

Columbia's lead was soon overcome. An error by Armstrong on Keenan's ground ball, a sacrifice, an out, and two hits netted Harvard two in their half of the first. After this Columbia was never dangerous. In the first of the seventh Delcastle was substituted in the box for Columbia. He allowed no hits and fanned two men, giving one base on balls. In the eighth and fifth innings Coburn did his twirling masterpiece of the season. Six Columbia batters faced him in these two innings, and as many New Yorkers retired on strike-outs. Coburn's hitting was also a feature. A year ago his stick work was the laughing stock of the university. Now he is one of the safest men on the team to come to the bat when a long, hard drive is needed. His judgment on balls and strikes is excellent, and he swings naturally and gracefully, but terrifically hard. He scored a stalling single and two long drives to the outfield yesterday in his three times at the bat.

Bradbury Played Second.

Bradbury was back on second base yesterday. He played there in the Princeton game. Dexter's work on second had fallen off recently. Bradbury is one of the best fielding second basemen that Harvard has ever had, but very weak with the stick. Dexter was put in centre field and McCarty in right. After the sixth Frank Spencer was put in right garden and McCarty took out. Second base, centre and right fields are the positions on the Crimson team that are not yet definitely settled. The race for them between the four men tried yesterday is a warm one.

Harvard got seven hits yesterday, four of which went to Matthews, who had his batting eye with him again.

Harvard plays Holy Cross on Soldiers Field next Saturday. Coach Haughton says he is one of the best games of the year as he sees it in Cambridge. The Worcester men have already beaten Harvard once this year, and the Holy Cross rooters are going to try hard to wipe out that defeat before they go to mercee.

YANKEE CAR IS READY FOR ITS LONG RACE.

NEW YORK, June 14.—When La Savoie leaves New York to-day for France, there will be aboard her Dr. H. E. Thomas's locomobile racer, bearing the official and unqualified indorsement of the Automobile Club of America's racing committee. The two other candidates for the American team in the Bennett Cup race, two Popeliebolet, will be shipped over weeks ago. minus the official stamp of approval of the A. C. A. racing committee. They were to have been shipped on the steamer on which Dr. Thomas's car, W. K. Vanderbilt's racing representative, Clarence Gray Dinsmore, but to date no announcement has been made as to whether Mr. Dinsmore has approved of the two cars. All of the requirements of the committee have been complied with to the letter of Dr. Thomas's car, W. K. Vanderbilt's sailing given to the machine its final testing and trying out on the Long Island roads near Great Neck on Tuesday. He already had put the car through a preliminary test of its construction and adjustments, but at that time the car weighed more than the maximum limit of 2,204 pounds. When the machine was taken to Great Neck on Tuesday for Mr. Vanderbilt's inspection, however, the weight question had been carefully attended to, and the car scaled but 2,194.

Joseph Tracy, who will drive the car in the Bennett race on July 5 over the Auvergne circuit in France, sailed for that country a week ago. He took with him a mechanician, and during the time he will remain there he will use the opportunity to become familiar with the cup course, the French speed limitations and the speed circuit to racing machines. William Poole, who will ride with Tracy as his mechanician in the race, will be a passenger to-day on the Savoie. Tracy, who is a Scotchman, who is familiar with French road racing rules and driving, went over the course last year with set in Dr. Thomas's interpretative before and during the race. A. E. Riker of Great Neck, who designed the car and superintended its construction and early trials will sail for France in the Savoie next and will witness the performance of his creation in the international motoring contest.

CORNELL'S HARD WORK IS OVER

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 15.—The Columbia oarsmen, who have been in undisputed possession of the Poughkeepsie course for the last ten days, were joined by the full rowing squads of Cornell and the University of Pennsylvania, and the new arrivals made a total of nine crews on the river, each college having out two eights and a four-oared crew.

Courtney admitted on his return to the boathouse that the hard work for both his eights is over. It was plain, however, that he is not satisfied with his four, as he coached it constantly.

BIG BOUT AT CHELSEA CLUB

Sam Langford, the colored whirlwind, will go against the toughest game that he has faced since their last meeting when the steps in the ring will be taken by Jackson at the Douglas A. C. to-morrow night.

Last year Jackson went to England and cleaned up everything on the British Isles, and then came back home and walloped Langford in a fast mill in one of the few fighters who can claim a knock out on Joe Walcott.

Jackson's defeat at the hands of Langford at Marlboro recently has troubled him and his manager, Al Herford, and the match was made to-morrow night with the expectation of Jackson getting back what he lost.

Another win for Langford would probably mean a match with Jack O'Brien, and the local man will be seen fighting as he never did before.

It should be a slashing mill, as both men excel in handing out hard wallops and punches that hurt.

BIG MEET AT SOMERVILLE

The big open athlete meet to be held by the city of Somerville on July 4 is already attracting the attention of the many athletes, and one of the largest entry lists ever handled in is assured.

The events will be handicap and open to all registered athletes. They are: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 880-yard run, running broad jump, 440-yard dash, mile run, running high jump and putting 16-pound shot.

The prizes will be gold watches to firsts and valuable trophies for second and third in each event. Entrance fee ten cents for each event and close with C. H. Eaton, 15A Tufts street, Somerville, on June 27.

AFTER WRAY AGAIN.

Word comes from Halifax that Mark Lynch will soon challenge for a return match with Jim Wray, to be rowed in Halifax Harbor. It is said Lynch was beaten by Wray three years ago. At the time of the race Lynch was recovering from a long siege of sickness, and now that he is feeling strong again he wants another race.

COACH RICE IN TOWN.

Jimmy Rice, coach of the Weld (Harvard) B. C., has reached this city, having made a flying visit to Canada, where he will coach the Ottawa R. C. crews the coming season. Rice's future plans, so far as his work at Harvard is concerned, are unsettled.

ACCEPTS MATCH WITH BRITT

BALTIMORE, June 15.—Manager Al Herford, of this city, has accepted the offer of the Hayes Valley Athletic Club, of San Francisco, to Kid Sullivan of a purse of $15,000 for a twenty-round fight with Jimmy Britt in that city July 15. The question of weight seems to be the only hindrance as yet to be agreed upon, Sullivan and Herford will leave for the Coast next week.

OLDFIELD HAD NARROW ESCAPE

HARTFORD, Conn., June 15.—Barney Oldfield had a narrow escape from death while negotiating a mile in 53 seconds on Charter Oak park. The Glidden tourist had just passed the quarter-pole and was rounding the fir turn when a tire exploded, followed almost immediately by the collapse of the right-hand rear wheel. Oldfield was picked up unhjured.

MIDDLE ENTRY VICTORIOUS

The Interdormitory series in baseball has been won at Harvard and Saturday of the University can now go on with their interdormitory games. The final game in the series was between middle and south Hollis, and the former team proved a victorious one by a score of 8 to 3. The line-ups:

Middle entry—Wallace, c.; Thomas and Woodbury, p.; Sales, 1b.; Longwell, 2b.; Thomas, ss.; Greig, c.f.; Paine, 3b.; Benelli, 2b.; Kay, l.f.

South entry—Cravis, p.; Talman, 1b.; Tingle, 2b.; Schaeffer, 3b.; Bigelow, ss.; Tapley, c.f.; Sumner, r.f.; Jones, l.f.

MOWATT DREW WITH SAYERS

Special to the Boston American.

GREEN BAY, Wis., June 15.—Tommy Mowatt of Chicago and Maurice Sayers of Milwaukee fought eight rounds to a draw here. There was little choice between them at the end of the first three rounds, but Sayers took a small lead in the fourth and fifth sessions by virtue of clever left hand jabs and good blocking.

Previous to his tearing in and slugging tactics effect Sayers's advantage, and as the ground was fairly even, both being directed by their fast work in the preceding rounds, the referee declared it a draw. Sayers did the cleaner and more clever fighting, while Tommy forced matters throughout.

HARD ROW FOR YALE EIGHT

YALE QUARTERS, Gales Ferry, Ct., June 15.—The Yale varsity eight went over the four-mile course from the railroad bridge up river, but the coaches declared that it was not a race against the watch, but simply a hard row to keep the men in condition.

It is not expected that the Yale men will be given a three row until Saturday afternoon, when the exams will have been completed.

The freshmen eight had a two-mile pull also. The two four-oar boats, varsity and freshmen, had a race for a mile, which the varsity won by five lengths.

ORPHEUS NINE WANTS GAMES

The Orpheus baseball club have a strong nine in the field again this season, to defend their title as champions of Houghs Neck. The members have rented a seashore cottage at the Neck, where they will entertain their guests with the same hospitality as in previous years.

The club has been newly uniformed and would like to arrange games with some strong teams. The line up is as follows: Saunders, c.; Murphy, Shea, Devine, p.; J. Clark, 1b.; Lambert, 2b.; Harrington, ss.; Courtney, 3b.; F. Clark, r.f.; Parrell, l.f.; Oliver, c.f. E. J. Murphy, manager, 880 Dorchester avenue.

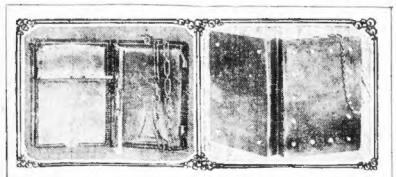
How to Spend the Saturday Half-Holiday

Five Vanity Boxes Will Be Given by the Boston American for the Best Five Ideas



Two views of one of the five Vanity Boxes to be given by the BOSTON AMERICAN for the best five letters on the Saturday half-holiday.

THE Vanity Box is Dame Fashion's latest caprice for women.

Write the BOSTON AMERICAN your idea of the best way for women to spend the Saturday half-holiday and you may get a Vanity Box.

Five Vanity Boxes will be given for the best five answers received before midnight Saturday, June 17. Do not write over 150 words.

Address your letters, Half-Holiday Editor, Boston American, Boston, Mass.

ALL is Vanity 'Neath the Sun!"

So sang the poet—we don't recollect exactly what poet, any old poet, and anyway he sang it.

Which reminds us. Have you got a "Vanity Box"? No!

Well, it's your own fault, so "Shamey! Shamey!" as we used to say in school, as we whistled one pudgy forefinger with the other, why not get one. FOR NOTHING.

That sounds impossible, doesn't it? Well, it isn't.

Listen:

The BOSTON AMERICAN has got five of the handsomest gun-metal vanity boxes, dainty as they make them, in the newest shape, turquoise studded and fastened with a dainty bar, which is in reality a pencil. They have all necessary compartments, and have a mirror, powder puff and all the rest.

And these five vanity boxes will be given as prizes to the five women writing the best five letters on the way to make the best use of the half-day respite from work which comes at the end of every week through the Summer months.

The BOSTON AMERICAN wants to know how Boston women spend their half-holiday.

Joys of Franklin Park.

A dime to get out to Franklin Park. Children under five free. And seats in the open cars. A beautiful ride, just exactly as fixed as to quality of air in and out, and then several hours of the most picturesque pleasant and peaceful spot in Massachusetts. It's your own, too. You've a right there. You may feed the ducks, roll on the grass, play hide and seek among the tall trees, climb the hills, slide on the pine needles, picnic and watch the people and golf players, wander up and down the paths and even get lost in the wilderness where mosquitoes abound and the little brook runs a merry race plaitwood, or sit on the rocky seats on Schoolmaster's Hill and talk on the beauty of the distant view—and the wonder of it to me is that, on holidays, this place is not thronged with the great multitude instead of being so sparsely visited. Try Franklin Park, dwellers in the city, and go home, tired, but refreshed and ready for the coming day of toil.

Dorchester.

A Lunch Party.

Have three or four girls plan on each dainty lunch baskets, each girl to put up a lunch for two which might consist of ham sandwiches, crackers, olives, cheese, crisp cakes and fruit. Have the girls go with same number of gentlemen, which would make a party of six or eight. Leave from your home about 2 o'clock to would have quite a 1-4 to-day on the any of the parks. At any of these resorts you could enjoy yourselves. I think the parks are more restful than the beaches for a holiday. There are many ways which would be more expensive. The same number might hire a drag or two carriages and take lunches.

M. B. LEARNED.

No. 286 Pleasant street, Malden.

To Near-by Beach.

I would say the most pleasant way to spend Saturday afternoon would be to have a lunch about 12:30 o'clock, then go via the ferry to one of the beaches near Boston, and either go in bathing or sit on the sands with a nice lot of candy and watch the others bathe. In that way you rest and yet enjoy yourself.

There Is No Career Open to Women That Comes Within a Thousand Miles of That of Being Happily Married, Says Beatrice Fairfax

By Beatrice Fairfax

ONE young woman declares that the chief reason why men do not marry is that women are not as easily won as in the old days.

"There are so many avenues open to women to-day," she says, "that matrimony loses some of its glamour.

"Ever since the world began women have been under an obligation to men for protection and love. Now it is the man who must look to the woman for protection and love. He is dependent on her for the comforts of home, and he must look to her for companionship.

"Suddenly she has discovered that there is a place for woman, as well as for man, in the world's field of work, and it is no wonder that she is slightly dazzled with her independence.

"This young woman may be right in some respects, she is making for a real trip of independence, and be one of the "dazzled" ones she speaks of.

"But if she thinks that the majority of women are better off out in the world seeking careers than in their natural sphere of wife and motherhood she is highly mistaken.

"There is no career open to women that comes within a thousand miles of that of being happily married.

"Women are not very different in their independence in woman; they prefer that she should be gentle and clinging.

"The modern girl, puffed with her success as a business woman, is in some danger of becoming rather mannish.

"Now, girls, I want to tell you something.

If the men are going to remain unmarried let it be because you don't want them, not because they don't want you. Don't lose your greatest charm—your femininity.

Men will never care for the mannish girl. What they want is sweet, lovable, womanly women.

If you feel that you must be independent, go out in the world, earn your living, but don't grow unwomanly. And don't throw away the love of a good man because you fancy that you have a "career" before you.

Careers are all very fine while you are young and hopeful, with all the world before you.

But how about the lonely days to come?

You may have made enough money to live comfortably—all by yourself—but wouldn't it be nicer if you had a strong, gentle arm to lean on and bright young faces to gaze upon?

Oh, girls, there's no comparison between the lonely spinster and the happy married woman.

Don't add to the growing ranks of bachelors by refusing to marry, and don't be so independent that men will be afraid to ask you.

Don't marry a man that you don't love, but be very sure you don't love him before you refuse him.

Lots of heartaches have come from insincerity.

Make yourselves so attractive that even the most hardened old bachelors will be glad to marry.

There is not one of them so hardened that he does not have some vulnerable spot. Perhaps you can find it.

Don't let it be said that the men of to-day don't marry because the girls of to-day are not as attractive as their grandmothers were.

Because that is not so. The modern girl is the best product of modern civilization.

But she must guard against becoming too self-sufficient or she will frighten the men away.

And as the modern man seems rather timid in regard to matrimony that would never do.

KEEPING THINGS CLEAN

MATCH marks on a polished or tarnished surface may be removed by being first rubbed with a cut lemon and then with a rag dipped in clean water.

Never rinse white lace in blue water under the impression that this will improve the color. Real lace should be finally rinsed in skim-milk, which will give it the soft, creamy tint so much admired.

To clean water bottles and decanters mix together half a gill of vinegar and a handful of salt. Shake well in the decanters to be cleaned, and no matter how discolored, this treatment has been tried and found successful.

Hair brushes in daily use should be washed at least once a month. Put a little ammonia into water and dip the brush—bristles only—into this. Dry the brush in the open air.

The soiling caused by persons leaning their heads against a papered wall may be lessened, if not obliterated, by laying a sheet of blotting paper upon the spot and passing over it a moderately warm flatiron.

BATHING POINTERS

DAILY cleansing of the surface of the body is not any too often. The beneficial effects of cleanliness to be effective, must be systematic.

For the healthful the temperature of the bath should be neither cold nor hot—not chilling the skin by the one nor relaxing it by the other. Very powerful impressions of any kind, as of great stimulation or great depression, can never become pleasurable. For the healthful, the cold bath is the best, and experience should be taken just previously, if necessary, to effect this purpose.

Brisk friction of the skin with a flesh brush or a Turkish towel promotes activity and vigor, and corrects, in no small degree, liability to take cold.

Only the most robust person may indulge in cold baths, the best hour for cold bathing being midday between breakfast and dinner, when the system is fully braced to throw off the effects of the cold water. A popular idea that water should not be entered while the surface of the body is warm, is to be exploded. The surface and extremities should be warm when the plunge is made, but, with experience should be taken just previously, if necessary, to effect this purpose.

Tiny Tappan, the Accomplished Little Spaniel.

An Accomplished Dog Is Tiny Tappan

THE most accomplished dog in Boston, in the estimation of many people, is Tiny Tappan, whose picture is presented to-day.

Tiny is of noble lineage, a canine aristocrat with a pedigree abnormally out of proportion to her size.

She is a Pomeranian spaniel, the snowy whiteness of her silken coat being offset by one buff ear which gives her an indescribably chic expression. She is the property of Major and Mrs. G. Arthur Tappan, and has recently celebrated her sixth birthday.

So far she has not been able to count one pound of avoidupois per year, as she only tips the scales at 5¾ pounds. Her intelligence is so far beyond the canine standard that her master declares she is almost human. Besides the ordinary accomplishments of begging and speaking and playing dead dog, Tiny says her prayers with a zeal which is inspiring; walks on her hind feet in most approved fashion; waltzes most gracefully; turns somersaults with the ease of an athlete, and sings in a voice which is vibrant, wide ranged and well sustained. It is as a pianist, however, that Tiny excels.

Seated on a piano stool, she rests both dainty paws on the keyboard until the music is placed before her, and then, lifting one paw after the other, she strikes the notes with great earnestness and precision. If the table is substituted for the piano her musical interest is no less keen. She sits quite as upright and solemn and drums her paws on the table, keeping time as carefully as when at the piano.

Her disposition is even and sunshiny. Her face alert and unusually handsome, and her heart affectionate and true.

She never fails in her courtesy toward others, and when she cannot give real love and confidence to the people she meets, she is invariably tolerant and kind.

In Major and Mrs. Tappan's eyes she is the most ideal dog that ever existed, and many of their friends agree with them perfectly.

Of course there are lots of people in and around Boston who own bright and handsome doggies. The BOSTON AMERICAN will be glad to print pictures of some of them. Send their photos and something about them to the Editor of the Woman's Page.

SCARLET LIES

By X and Z, Authors of Married to Mystery

CHAPTER CVII.—Continued.

GEORGE refused at first. What did he want with a private secretary? Mr. Blenheim would be telling him he might have a valet next, or one of the footmen was free. And so Mr. Vaughan was engaged, and was privately posted in his duties by Mr. Blenheim.

"They simply got it as a sort of social joke in your new master," said the solicitor, "and see that he doesn't do anything absurd. Keep him from writing letters or seeing people. Be diplomatic. You'll find him a most trying customer. Some of the best fellows I've ever met in life have been my fortune to meet, and he's another. But his heart was better than his head, and that's straight." The reason why I have chosen you for this post is because you have had a good education, and are a gentleman, and as for the house, it gives me the creeps, and I'm England to live in now that my father's dead. It takes a good ten minutes, hard going, to walk from the library to my bedroom. And as for those liveried servants, well, they simply bore me over. Vaughan."

"I'm frightened o' them, Vaughan."

"Then you needn't call your servants 'em,' protested Vaughan. "It isn't usual, and there's the slightest risk in going to give them orders, or even them not thinking when they should."

"Well, they're all letters men than me," returned George humbly.

"Never mind," said Vaughan encouraging, "I'll soon get you broken in. Just to fit, don't you know; but, my dear Mr. Blenheim, I beg of you to allow me to do with the butler when you see him in the morning, and also don't discuss Melville's gossip with Jolliffe and the other servants. You must understand that sort of thing."

And I'm blowed if I understand the other sort of thing," laughed George. "I tell you I'm no good at——"

"I wish you wouldn't call me 'sir' like that, interrupted Vaughan. "Call me Vaughan, plain and simple."

"Right you are," replied the new Stephen. "It sounds like presumption calling you by your Christian name. Bless being 'Blenheim' or the almighty Wharton (Wharton was the aged head butler, who had been in the Holland service ever since he could remember, and was, perhaps, the most formidable person on George's horizon.

"Well," said Vaughan philosophically, "you've simply got to do it. You are young, and I'm young, and we don't care a fig for what Wharton or anybody else thinks. You surely don't want to look ridiculous."

"Not for anything," said George, "if I started aping the ways and manners of the Hollands—Hough! I see myself. Not me. You can take me as you find me, and I never make anything different from what I am, and there it is. I'll be civil to the servants than with you and all the other grand folks that I suppose I'll meet."

"A Fish Out of Water.

with all this bowing and scraping. Heavens, Mr. Vaughan, think of what I was a month or two ago, and see what I am now! Why, I was a fish out of water, that's what I was a man; I know what I wanted, and I knew how to get it, and I don't care a fig for any man. I held my head up, and looked any man in the face. Now! Look at me now! I'm a blessed curiosity, a freak! I don't know what I am. My betters give way to me, and—oh, I give it up!" He shook his head despondently.

"My dear Mr. Holland," young Vaughan protested, "you must really appreciate your position—your right and true position. It is not as if all this is not yours by right. You talk as if you were an impostor."

"And that's exactly what I feel like," said George.

"But you aren't. You have been Stephen Holland all this time, although you haven't known it."

"Between you and me and the gate post," said the incorrigible George, "I wish I'd never known it. I was a good deal happier, after all was said and done."

"But does not this great position, this vast wealth, mean anything to you?" exclaimed Vaughan.

"What's the good of position to me?" answered George, indignantly. "It only makes me a laughing stock to myself. Why, I might as well call myself Henry the Fifth when I used to ride round the towns with Revelle's circus procession. All this is just the same to me as that tin property armor I used to wear. Pshaw! And what's the good of wealth? I don't know how to spend it. Give me a solid twenty-five dollars a week, and I'd be as happy as a sandboy. But what am I to do with hundreds, thousands? Oh, Mr. Vaughan, I wish I could make you understand!"

"You are really a most extraordinary study," said the young man, turning into a hearty peal of laughter, in which Stephen finally joined. "I could never have imagined a man who would regret having changed the salary of a performer in a second-rate circus for a million or two."

"Yes, but I tell you, sir," interrupted George, "I don't know what position means; a million is just so much Greek to me. It's all beyond me."

I'm Dazed and Bewildered."

"But surely you feel the blood of the Hollands is your veins?"

"I don't feel anything of the sort," answered George. "I've tried to; but it's no good."

"But your mother?" suggested Vaughan.

MID-WEEK NEWS OF LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Many Enjoyable Attractions at the Theatres and Summer Parks.

GOOD HOLIDAY SHOWS

Boston Theatre.

Several novel song and dance features have been arranged for "The Earl and the Girl" in celebration of Bunker Hill day, and they will be presented for the first times at the holiday matinee and evening performances on Saturday. All the original song hits, such as "Spooning," "Little Maidens in Distress," "Lady's Maid," "Shopping," "May, May, Come to the Ball," "If It's Good Enough for Teddy" and "The Grenadiers," are, of course, retained.

Tremont Theatre.

"The Prince of Pilsen" is in its last week but one at the Tremont Theatre. For a piece that has been given here so many times in the past, it is enjoying a really remarkable run, but it is a jolly show and the music is tuneful, while the numerous seem to take to it quite as much now as in the days of its youth. It is excellently given, and the presenting company compares favorably with any that has been seen in the piece.

Keith's Theatre.

"The Senator" is being given excellently before, and the big audiences at Keith's these days are made up largely of music-lovers. The Fadettes organization is really a very fine one, and the selections this week are played in splendid style. Then there are many vaudeville attractions in addition. McIntyre and Heath are doing their last week.

Empire Theatre.

"The Belle of New York" is still drawing crowded houses to the Empire. It is one of the best of the long string of musical comedies that has been offered the public and is as entertaining as it is tuneful. The presentation at the Empire is an excellent one. The company is good, the chorus sings well, and the staging is handsome.

Castle Square Theatre.

athletes are Otis Lambert, the male model at the Castle Square Theatre and is attracting large audiences. Next week Mary Hall joins the company, appearing as Rosalind in "As You Like It."

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"Lucky Ranch" has proved a popular attraction at the Bowdoin Square and is giving satisfaction to the patrons of the house. Next week, "Who Owns the Baby."

Lyceum Theatre.

Ethel Amorita Kelley has created a real sensation at the Lyceum Theatre. She is little and she is young, but her dancing makes a hit. The entire show at the Lyceum this week is excellent.

Palace Theatre.

The show at the Palace Theatre this week is one of the best that the Summer stock company has yet offered the patrons of the house. The burlesques are entertaining and the olio is a good one.

Austin & Stone's Museum.

There is plenty of attraction for those who admire men of strength and physical charm in the ten physical culturists who are giving the show at Austin & Stone's Museum this week. Heading the list of seems crowded. There are more attractand Young Sandow, who are seen in hourly posings.

Paragon Park.

Everything is being put in fine shape at Paragon Park, Nantasket, and it is a remarkably attractive place to spend an afternoon or an evening. To those who have never seen the immense shore resort around New York it comes as a revelation, with its thousands and thousands of incandescent lights.

Norumbega Park.

The fine, warm weather yesterday drew big crowds to Norumbega Park, although so large is the reservation that it never seems crowded. There are some attractions at this popular resort this year than ever, and it is a very pleasant place to spend either an afternoon or an evening.

Lexington Park.

Lexington Park, the pretty forest pleasure ground, will open for the season on Saturday. There will be more for the amusement and entertainment of patrons than ever before, and it is expected that the park will prove this season more popular than ever.

Point of Pines.

There will be a special opening of the Point of Pines on Bunker Hill day, and this resort will also be open on Sunday, although the regular season will not begin until July 1. There will be a big display of fireworks, a balloon ascension and a special attraction and a lot of other free attractions.

LETTER 'E' MAY COST HER $3000

The little letter "e" may cost Mrs. Peter H. Deacon No. 2 of Milwaukee $3,000, the amount of her husband's life insurance in the Royal Arcanum. Mrs. Deacon No. 1, of Somerville, is contesting the case, and the courts are to decide who gets the money.

After Peter H. Deacon, who Mrs. Deacon No. 2 believed was her legal husband, died on April 13, in Chicago, she laid claim to the $3,000 insurance. In making out the papers she wrote her name as "Fannie Adeline Deacon." The original policy was made out in favor of "Fannie Adline Deacon," the letter "e" being omitted in the middle name.

The policy would undoubtedly have been paid had there been no discrepancy between the two names. There was no confirmation that Deacon had two wives and two families, but there was delay in correcting the claim and meantime Mrs. Deacon No. 1 appeared on the scene.

18 INJURED BY BURSTING SHELL

GIBRALTAR, June 15.—Eighteen of the crew of the British battleship Magnificent, including four officers, were seriously injured by the explosion of a six inch shell on the vessel during target practice. The explosion was due to a defect in the breech of the gun.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 15, 1905.

There Are a GOOD MANY THINGS to Be Said for John D. Rockefeller

He Is the Greatest of the Great Monopolists: but He Doesn't Poison People

It is said that old John D. Rockefeller is heartbroken over the attacks that have been made upon his "tainted money."

Too bad that Mr. Rockefeller couldn't have a sense of humor. It would help him over the "tainted money" crisis wonderfully.

Mr. Rockefeller's money is no more and no less "tainted" than that of any other man in the United States who has succeeded in building up an enormous fortune through monopoly, choking competition and competitors, ruthlessly fighting others trying to get part of the profit.

Organization of industry, in which Rockefeller is the great figure, is going to be a good thing, in the long run.

It is not a good thing to have one man accumulate a thousand millions of dollars—and use the money to get MORE through corruption of legislation.

It is not a good thing to have a class of enormous millionaires setting false standards of living and ambition.

It is a ridiculous thing to have the natural wealth and the natural monopolies of the land owned by a few individuals.

But this trust stage of civilization is ONLY a stage—it is a necessary stage. Rockefeller has helped along the progress of the world by precipitating trust formation and rushing us to our normal and inevitable conclusion—that is, GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

Rockefeller is rapidly proving that it is perfectly possible for one single head to own ALL the oil, ALL the railroads, ALL the mines, the street cars, the gas works of a nation—running them more profitably WITHOUT competition than with competition.

It will not take the people many years to decide that, if competition is a useless fraud and waste, if one head can run the national monopolies, THAT HEAD SHALL BE THE PEOPLE THEMSELVES.

The people will soon say that what Rockefeller can do they can do—and they will do it.

In all progress the INDIVIDUAL must make his demonstration before the people can act as a unit.

Individuals coined money and made laws before nations made money and laws.

Individuals had armies and navies before nations had them—that is to say, before the PEOPLES themselves owned and controlled them.

The Rockefellers, Morgans and others have their little trusts now—proving that competition is wasteful. The people will have ALL the trusts and monopolies eventually, to their great saving and great prosperity.

There are good things to be said of John D. Rockefeller outside of the fact that he has acted as a national teacher, showing us that a nation CAN own its own properties.

Rockefeller has done some good things—done them quietly, without boasting.

He has built up a great university that will last and benefit the world many years after he shall have gone, after all talk of disciplining professors for THINKING shall have ended.

The result of Mr. Rockefeller's investment in that university will be to educate a million men. And among that million of men there will be more than one capable of making another Rockefeller impossible.

Mr. Rockefeller showed imagination and the right kind of human feeling when he gave a very large sum of money—a sum that he is ready to increase indefinitely—to enable scientists to combat the diseases that kill children. This he did in memory of a grandchild—a fine and noble charity.

His money is used in the most thorough study of the dreadful infant mortality.

Every mother who has sat by helpless and seen her child die, because human stupidity was powerless to save it, knows that the money which Rockefeller gave to help the children and the mothers of the future WAS NOT TAINTED MONEY.

There is not any money in any Baptist missionary's pocket better than the money that John D. Rockefeller is spending to save the lives of children in the United States.

In comparison with the money that is spent to save the lives of children here, the money that the good Baptists are sending out to convert savages to something they cannot understand is a very foolish kind of money indeed.

The best reply that Mr. Rockefeller could make to those that call his money "tainted" would be to say:

"Thanks for your suggestion. Perhaps you are right. I will use my money, which I GOT from living human beings, to HELP living human beings—especially children and the young that need education. You can use your money—UNTAINTED—to save the heathen, and when we all come up for judgment, we shall see what happens."

We are inclined to think that Mr. Rockefeller, with perhaps five or ten millions of children's lives saved through his expenditures, and a few hundreds of thousands of men educated by him, would do pretty well on the Judgment Day.

There is another good thing about Rockefeller, and that is that which HE DOESN'T DO.

He DOESN'T advertise his charity. He ISN'T sanctimonious in his criticisms of others.

And he doesn't, for instance, sell adulterated food, to poison the people that buy it.

It is rather preposterous that he should have all the kerosene, all the gasoline, all the crude oil—in short, that he should be peddling out to the people of the country the treasures that NATURE put in the soil millions of years before he was born.

But at least he peddles REAL KEROSENE.

He is a good deal above some of those that criticise him and that make their living by selling adulterated food or by squeezing down to the last penny those that work for them. Rockefeller has the reputation of paying his men decently, anyhow.

What this country wants is a wide-awake people, able to PROTECT THEMSELVES with laws against monopoly—that is to say, with laws TAKING OVER the monopoly under government ownership.

The talk about "tainted money" is foolish. If we could examine the moral microbes on the average collection plate we might see things that would surprise Mr. Rockefeller's critics.

Mrs. Astor's Triumph

By James J. Montague

Mrs. Astor was the only woman at the Court Ball who knew how to wear her court veil so as to show her back.—Morning paper.

THE Princess Highty-Tighty gnashed her teeth in dumb despair;
The haughty Duchess Sneering sadly sighed;
While Lady Gracious-Goodness, with a stolid, stony stare,
Endeavored to conceal her wounded pride;
The Honorable Miss Hourglass in envy bit her lip,
As the Person from Manhattan rustled past her;
What profited those beauties their estate of Ladyship,
If they couldn't wear a veil like Mrs. Astor?

To them 'twas quite impossible to keep that hundred-weight
Of velvet in the way it ought to go.
And when they asked their lady's maids: "Is my court veil on straight?"
The answer was invariably "No."
Ah! Plainly was the fall at hand of British precedence!
Supremacy was doomed to swift disaster;
Their titles to the ladies were of little consequence
Since they couldn't wear their veils like Mrs. Astor.

She shunted it so gracefully across her regal gown,
And brought her graceful shoulders into view;
While the veils the others flaunted, in dejection sagging down,
Showed but a dorsal vertebra or two.
All sympathetic womankind can quite appreciate
The grief these high-born ladies couldn't master
When they learned that it had been ordained by cruel, crushing Fate
That they couldn't wear their veils like Mrs. Astor.

Blessed is he who has found his work.
Let him ask no other blessedness.
CARLYLE.

Propagating a Race Along Beauty Lines

MR. OGERODNIKOFF, a wealthy Russian from Vladivostok, recently arrived in San Francisco with an interesting story and has flourished beyond all expectation of experiments made by his cousin Rachatnikoff, who has been devoting a beautiful race of people.

"Years ago," he said, "Rachatnikoff attracted to his estate especially handsome men and girls of more than usual beauty by offering free land in forty or fifty men, carefully picked from a large number of applicants and selecting for them as wives fine-looking young women from different parts of Russia. This selected colony has flourished beyond all expectation and over a hundred children have been reared from these unions.

"These children are so pretty as to make the Rachatnikoff estate famous.

"It was the marriage of two of these children that I attended about a year and a half ago. The bride was eighteen and remarkable for her beauty, while the bridegroom was about twenty four and was a fit mate for the village queen.

"At the conclusion of the ceremony the happy couple were conducted by M. Rachatnikoff to a pretty little cottage, surrounded by a small, well-stocked farm, which was his wedding present to them. Similar wedding presents will be given to others of these children when they get married."

This is extremely interesting, but it doesn't appeal to us at all. Nature's time-honored plan is not only more practical, but also more satisfactory. By Nature's plan we mean that curious contrariness of the sexes that makes the golden-haired, blue-eyed, ruby-lipped victim of feminine glory marry the pie-faced little shrimp whom she adores; while the tall, broad-shouldered Greek god selects for his life partner the snub-nosed, cross-eyed, freckled little chewing-gum devotee whom he has selected as the flower of her sex. If we were all Adonises and Venuses it might be different.

If Rachatnikoff's scheme were universally adopted what would become of those who failed to be selected? We would then have a race of beauties and another race composed mainly of lobsters. And, as the only solution of the problem would then be intermarriage between the two races, we would be just about where we started.

Besides, Rachatnikoff, "handsome is as handsome does."

And, furthermore, 'tis better to be low-legged in Boston than to stand on the legs of Apollo Belvidere in Vladivostok.
